HARLEM, July 30, 1863.

I have been deaf for over TWENTY-FIVE YEARS, and Dr. VON EISENBERG operated on both of my ears without the slightest pain—a thing that I could not believe could be done. I now hear well, and feel as I never felt for the last twenty years. The dexterity and skill with which the operation was performed evince the highest practical ability. I hear perfectly. It is now over a month since the operation, and I continue to feel as well as ever.

CATARRH CURED.

NEW-YORK, Aug. 23, 1863.

I have been suffering for the last three years from a severe Catarrh, with a continual dullness in my head, a tightness across my chest, a weight over my eyes, which were weak, watery and very painful. My nostrils were continually obstructed with a pouring of fluid. I have had frequent sneezing, hoarseness of my voice, generally attended with spitting, often with a fullness of my throat, together with a soreness and a dropping. Dr. VON EISENBERG has cured me of all these disagreeable sufferings. I now feel a new life. The treatment of Dr. VON EISENBERG is as skillful as it is successful; it is impossible to overrate the benefit I have received at his hands. I heartily recommend any one suffering like myself to place themselves under Dr. VON EISENBERG'S care, with a certainty of being speedily cured. I give this with gratitude and pleasure. I cannot forbear again saying that my voice, which was hoarse and thick when I applied to Dr. VON EISENBERG, is now clear and good; indeed, I feel abundantly satisfied.

JAMES LITTLE,
No. 245 7th-st., New-York.

NEW-YORK, Sept. 8.

I have been suffering for years past from a severe Catarrh, with a great heaviness over my eyes, with a severe depression, great uneasiness, and pain in my head, great difficulty in breathing, and a continual accumulation in my nostrils, which gave me restless nights for several years. I have consulted several physicians, who pronounced me to be consumptive. What I suffered for so long a time is indescribable. My system was entirely disarranged and greatly debilitated. I not only felt weak, but I had a cloud continually before my eyes, and my ears were so affected that I was threatened with a total loss of hearing. I must say, I think, I was guided by Providence to come to Dr Von Eisenberg, who not only cured me of my Catarrh by removing an astonishing quantity of disagreeable matter from my head, but he restored me to perfect health, a blessing I have not enjoyed for many years. Now I enjoy a good night's rest, and pursue my business with comfort. I must acknowledge that Dr. Von Eisenberg's mild and scientific treatment for Catarrh deserves the highest commendation, as the principle which directs his system of curing Catarrh is such as to render success certain.

JAMES FURLONG, No. 556 2d-av.

No. 134 ALLEN-ST., NEW-YORK, Feb. 9, 1863.

I have been completely deaf in one ear, and partially so in the other, for above seventeen years, with a disagreeable discharge from both ears, combined with continual rumbling noise in the head, for which I have been treated by a most eminent practitioner in the City without the slightest relief.

I consulted Dr. Von Eisenberg, but I must candidly say that I had no faith in his success when I did so. It is, therefore, due to Dr. Von Eisenberg to acknowledge that I am entirely cured; also, that he displayed that skill and knowledge which have procured for him such an unrivaled reputation. As I have had an opportunity of comparing his mode of treatment with that of others, I can truly state that it is not only superior, but the principles which direct his mode of restoring the hearing are, in my opinion, certain.

JOHN TAYLOR.

NEW-YORK, July'19, 1862.

This certifies that my mother has been for some time afflicted with partial deafness, suffering from pain, and rumbling noises in the head, together with other indications of a total loss of hearing. Dr. Von Eisenberg removed from her ears a great quantity of matter, together with coagulated blood, relieving her instantaneously, and all without pain. Its with grateful thanks that I give this testimony to his skill.

SIGHT RESTORED.

JUNE 25, 1863.

My daughter brought me to Dr. VON EISENBERG almost completely blind in both eyes. I could not bear the pain nor the light. I am completely cured by Dr. VON EISENBERG, and called now to express my gratitude to the Doctor for his skill and unremitting attention, by which I recovered one of the most precious senses to me after being deprived of it for four years. It is only due to Dr. VON EISENBERG to state that I have tried several physicians in vain. I shall be happy to bear personal testimony to Dr. VON EISENBERG'S unrivaled success to any lady or gentleman who will call on me.

CHRONIC CATARRH CURED.
READ.

NEW-YORK, March 20, 1863.

"This is to certify, that I have suffered from very severe CHRONIC CATARRH, with a dull heaviness in the head. I felt my nose completely stopped up accompanied by continual soreness of the throat, the chills stealing over me with occasional hot flushes, a great tightness of the chest and pain, so much so, that every one thought it was consumption. Having heard of the great cures performed by Dr. Von Eisenberg, I consulted him with but little hope of a cure. I am now happy to be enabled to add my testimonial to the great number already in the Doctor's possession, as to his scientific and successful mode of treatment, as he has shown in my case that skill and knowledge which have procured for him so great a reputation. I am so entirely restored to perfect health that I do most sincerely recommend all sufferers from CHRONIC CATARRH and SORE THROAT to apply at once to Dr. Von Eisenberg with a certainty of being cured."

Details of the Siege of Charleston.

The Bombardment and Evacuation of Forts Wagner and Gregg.

A Peace Debate in the Virginia State Senate.

Gen. Hardee Gathering Together the Vicksburgh Garrison.

A VICTORY CLAIMED IN TENNESSEE.

MISCELLANEOUS INTELLIGENCE.

We have received Richmond papers as late as Sept. 11, from which we make up the following interesting summary:

THE SIEGE OF FORT WAGNER.

HIGHLY INTERESTING PARTICULARS OF THE BOMBARDMENT AND THE EVACUATION.

From the Charleston Mercury Sept. 7.

The dawn of Friday last revealed a large United States banner—the hated flag of stars and stripes—flaunting from a work of the enemy within one hundred and fifty yards of Wagner.

On the same morning, which, from imperfect information, we, in our last issue, erroneously reported as comparatively quiet, the enemy opened, just before 5 o'clock, with their Parrott guns upon that fort; firing first upon the flank curtain and gradually edging toward the centre. At 5½ o'clock the Ironsides drew up within 1,500 yards, and commenced to shell with great rapidity. It was not until 8½ o'clock that she retired, having kept up a continuous fire for more than two hours and a half. The loss sustained at Wagner by this fire fell principally upon the Twenty-fifth South Carolina volunteers.

During this day the enemy advanced their parallels only a very short distance from their main approach.

At three o'clock on Saturday the enemy again opened upon Wagner from all their land batteries, assisted by the Ironsides, several gunboats, and an occasional shot from the monitors. This bombardment—beyond all doubt the most fierce and long continued which has taken place against Wagner since the beginning of the siege—lasted throughout Saturday and Saturday night, and did not abate until Sunday morning at eight o'clock. Nor was this abatement of much duration. The fire was soon renewed, and was continued with little less vigor all Sunday, the Ironsides—which maintained a position between Gregg and Wagner, and kept shelling Wagner and the beach—being especially active.

It was on Saturday night, however, and on Sunday morning up to 8 A. M., that the bombardment raged with its greatest fury. The shots—many of them coming together, as from the broadside of a ship—were often more than sixty to the minute.

Our batteries on James Island of course joined in the melée, and did their utmost to annoy the enemy's land batteries.

But the bombardment of Wagner was not the only event of Saturday night. About ten o'clock the enemy displayed from the deck of a monitor off Morris Island an immense calcium light, and several monitors soon after moved up and opened on Battery Gregg. Moultrie and Gregg replied with spirit. At a quarter to two a rocket was thrown up, and ere many minutes elapsed, the enemy were descerned approaching Morris Island at a point between Gregg and Wagner. They had come down in barges through a creek west of Morris Island, obviously with the design of assaulting Gregg in the rear. Advancing in line of battle they were permitted to come very near, when a nine-inch Dahlgren opened upon them at short range, with double canister. Our howitzers then commenced a fire of shrapnel and canister, while our infantry, admirably posted, poured into them a fire of musketry. Moultrie, Battery Bee, and Battery Mitchel also opened upon them a rapid and most demoralizing fire. This they could not withstand, and though for a very short while they maintained a fire of musketry and grape-shot from their barges, they were soon forced to withdraw, seemingly much surprised and confused by their recention and our admirable disposition. It is said that a few gained the shore, but these soon scampered to their boats, so that no prisoners were taken. The loss inflicted upon the enemy in this baffled attempt at an assault was probably not inconsiderable, but as all who were struck fell in the boats, the extent of that loss is, of course, unknown. Some bodies were found which floated ashore.

It is almost impossible to describe the terrible beauty of the scene in Charleston harbor as witnessed on Saturday night from the city. From Moultrie almost to Secessionville a whole semi-circle of the horizon was lit up by incessant flashes from cannon and shell. As peal on peal of artillery rolled across the waters, one could scarcely resist the belief that not less than a thousand great guns were in action. It was a grand chorus of hell, in which Moloch might have assisted, and over with Satan might have presided.

All this went on beneath a waning September moon, which, with its warm Southern light, mellowed by a somewhat misty atmosphere, brought out softly, yet distinctly, the most distant outlines of the harbor.

The loss at Wagner during this awful bombardment was considerable. Up to 8 o'clock on Sunday it amounted to one hundred and fifty in killed and wounded. Probably many more were added to these casualties in the course of the day.

At Gregg there were but eight casualties on Saturday night during the skirmish with the barges. Among them was a Captain of the Twenty-seventh Georgia Volunteers.

Under cover of their ceaseless fire, the Yankees had approached on Sunday within forty yards of Wagner.

During the bombardment of Friday last the brave and zealous Major WARLEY was wounded at Wagner by the fragment of a shell. He was struck on the ankle, but the wound is said not to be severe.

About 9 o'clock P. M. of that day he was put into a barge—the Leo, belonging to Gen. RIPLEY—to be brought to the city. Of this barge, with its gallant freight, and of its crew, which was made up of white men, nothing has been heard up to the present moment. The inference is that it was captured, with all on board, by a reconnoitring party of the enemy, whose small boats nightly patrol the waters between Morris Island and Fort Johnson. Col. RHETT's boat, returning from Morris Island to Charleston Saturday night, with Lieut. JONES, passed between several of these prowlers, and was not fired on, probably on account of the contemplated attack on Gregg.

On Sunday, Commander A. F. WARLEY went down in the Juno, under a flag of truce to carry certain dispatches, and also with the purpose of discovering the fate of the missing officer. He was fired on fourteen times, but came to anchor under fire, and was met by Ensign PORTER. This officer replied to the commander's inquiries "that he had been away" on Friday night, and that, though he had heard there had been a capture, he was not aware whether Major WARLEY was among the prisoners or not. He added that he would inquire, and, if Major WARLEY was a captive, he would inform the commander when the dispatches were answered. No reply has yet been received.

It will scarcely be believed (though what would not one believe of a Yankee?) that the shore batteries fired for some time on the Juno, utterly regardless of her flag of truce. Eight shots were directed at her, even after she had come to an anchor, with the white ensign of peace at her fore. Nor did they fire badly. Several shots passed through her rigging, a few dashed the spray into the faces of the crew, and not one passed more than five steps from the ship.

EVACUATION OF MORRIS ISLAND.

To sum up the events through which we have just passed, Battery Wagner has been subjected during the three last days and nights to the most terrific fire that any earthwork has undergone in all the annals of warfare. The immense descending force of the enormous Parrott and mortar shells of the enemy had nearly laid the wood work of the bombproofs entirely bare, and had displaced the sand to so great a degree that the sally-ports are almost entirely blocked up. The parallels of the enemy yesterday afternoon had been pushed up to the very mouth of Battery Wagner, and it was no longer possible to distinguish our fire from that of the enemy. During the entire afternoon the enemy smelled the sand hills in the rear of Battery Wagner, (where our wounded lay,) very vigorously.

Under these circumstances, and in view of the difficulties of communication with Cumming's Point, the impossibility of longer holding Morris Island became apparent, and it was determined that strenuous efforts should be made at once to release the brave garrison of the island, who seemed to be almost within the enemy's grasp. This desirable assault was accomplished with the most commendable promptitude and success.

About 6 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, the orders for the evacuation were delivered to Col. KEITT, commanding our forces on the island. Everything was at once made ready for the abandonment of batteries Wagner and Gregg. The dead were buried, and at nightfall the wounded were carefully removed in barges to Fort Johnson. The guns, which for so many weeks had held the foe at bay, were double-shotted, fired and spiked; the heavier pieces were dismounted, and the carriages rendered worthless. The preliminary preparations being thus completed, the work of embarkation was noiselessly begun, and the brave men of the garrison, in 40 barges, were soon gliding from the beach they had held so stoutly and so long. The evacuation was conducted by Col. KEITT, assisted by Maj. BRYAN, A. A. G.; and the success with which what has always been considered one of the most difficult feats of warfare has been performed, is worthy of the highest praise. Batteries Gregg and Wagner had both been carefully mined, with a view to blowing them up. It was about 1 o'clock this morning when he lost three boats, containing Col. KEITT and a number of his officers, just left the island. The slow match was lighted by Capt. Hugenin at Wagner, and by Capt. Lesesne at Gregg; but, owing to some defect in the fuses, no explosion took place at either fort.

During the evacuation the enemy was not idle. A constant fire of shell was kept up against Wagner, and his howitzer barges were busily plying about this side of Morris Island, to prevent the retreat of our men. But, fortunately, the night was murky, and all our barges, with the exception of one containing about 12 or 15 men, passed in safely.

A little before 9 o'clock this morning the following was received from Major ELLIOTT, commanding Fort Sumter:

FORT SUMTER, Sept. 7—2:40 A. M.

All the garrison of Morris Island who came here have been shipped. Lieut. HASKELL's boat from the Chicora was captured by a Yankee barge. Two of the crew came to Fort Sumter and report that all our troops had left the Island.

STEPHEN ELLIOTT, Major Commanding.

Thus ends the defence of Morris Island. The issue has been foreseen since the enemy's first success on the 10th of July. The defence of the island had been prolonged far beyond what was deemed possible at first, and the brave garrisons who have held it deserve the admiration of their countrymen.

The aggregate of casualties in the struggle for the island have been, on our side, about 700—killed, wounded and missing. The enemy's loss is estimated at about six thousand. The successful evacuation, after the glorious defence of forty-eight days, is, under all the circumstances, a most gratifying military event.

THE ASSAULT ON FORT SUMTER.

The following dispatch to the Enquirer, dated Charleston, Sept. 9, gives a few additional particulars of the unsuccessful assault on Fort Sumter:

"At 1½ o'clock this morning the enemy made a bold and determined effort to carry Fort Sumter by assault.

The fort was garrisoned by the Charleston battalion, and commanded by Maj. STEPHEN ELLIOTT. The enemy approached in about fifty barges. As soon as they were seen, Fort Moultrie and Battery Bee opened upon them simultaneously with the infantry in Fort Sumter.

The Yankees succeeded in landing a portion of the force at the ruin; but after fifteen minutes' contest, in which the Charleston battalion fought chiefly with brickbats and hand grenades, were driven back and retreated in disorder.

No account has yet been received concerning the Yankee loss in killed and wounded. We captured from the assaulting party three stands of colors, four or five barges, 18 commissioned officers and 102 rank and file. The prisoners are now coming up to the city.

No casualty on our side, our men having good cover. All quiet this morning.

A flag of truce is coming up from the fleet, but owing to recent instances of firing on our flag of truce, theirs will not be received."

THE SITUATION.

From the Richmond Examiner, Sept. 11.

We have nothing new from Charleston beyond the fact, gathered from the War Department, that the Yankees are engaged in throwing up the waste dirt against Fort Wagner, and are establishing new batteries in its proximity, with the intention of planting some of their heaviest guns for the purpose of shelling Charleston. Fort Gregg and Cummings' Point have been occupied by the enemy, and guns planted, whose shots, it is supposed, will reach the battery on the verge of the city.

We cannot repress the remark that we believe the fury of the bombardment, like a terrific thunderstorm that has passed over, has been wasted, and that henceforth the attack will, like a storm, abate its fury, and finally die out and be succeeded by a calm.

We abide the issue, but we hope for the result.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS.

DESERTERS.

From the Richmond Examiner, Sept. 11.

The Northern public and Government, if the Press of the United States is their true exponent, now base their chief hopes of success on the stories, with which they are every day regaled, of desertions on a large scale from the armies of the Confederacy. These stories are false, in so far as they represent this hideous vice to be more prevalent now than at any previous period in the Southern force. Indeed, there is less of it than ever before. But it is entirely true that the great source of all the calamities of the South has been from that worst of evils. Under the delicate name of absenteeism it has found excusers and defenders. Even the public Press has been sometimes so depraved as to argue that those "absent without leave" were not deserters—that they were, in fact, rather better men than those who were never absent without leave; because it was their excessive and noble love of home, and of their females, which wrought on them to such a degree as to overcome the love of country and duty. Unhappily the Government and military authorities have practically confirmed this charming view of the absent. Until within the last few days no deserter, even if accidentally caught, has been punished by anything worse than a little confinement. The consequence has been, that the South has not yet had any real army at all, but only some voluntary associations, kept together by the spirit of the few and the cowing of the many. Another consequence has been the lost of Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi, and two-thirds of Virginia; the devastation of the fields, the conflagration of farm houses, the depopulation of the villages, the outrage, murder and subjugation of the citizens in a region containing the resources of an empire. All our calamities, financial, political, social, private and public, of Government and of individuals, are results of an imperfect defence against the enemy. Our defence has been imperfect because the line was not long enough, the ranks unfilled, the column not deep. Why was that? Has the country refused to give of its men? The country placed in the hands of the Executive six hundred thousand men. They have been enrolled and placed under arms. Only a portion of them have remained. The rest have deserted, and the Executive has refused to employ the only means known in human experience to prevent them from so doing. This is the cause of our suffering. This is the error which will produce the catastrophe. This policy, long persisted in, is the awful fact which weighs on the heart of every reflecting man. Unless this policy can be altered, the subjugation of these States is nearly certain. It is stupid, it is wicked, to enlarge the circle of conscription, when those in the prime of life are not retained after they are enrolled. But if they are recalled and retained by an inflexible application of the laws of war, there need be no conscription. The Confederacy already possesses an army (on paper) beyond its power of support. It would this hour outnumber the enemy on every field if no miscreant was absent without leave. Within the last few days, ten deserters have died their just death. If the fact is an indication of a new rule in the Confederate army, none need fear for the fate of the country, for desertion will cease on the day when it becomes known that desertion is death; the army will fill when it is ascertained that the soldier who remains at home, does so to dig his grave.

Why is no European army troubled by the disease of desertion? Simply for this reason—that a deserter, if taken in ten hours after leaving camp, is shot—and if not caught until twenty years after leaving camp, he is shot.

THE VIRGINIA LEGISLATURE.

"PEACE RESOLUTIONS."

In the Upper House of the Virginia Legislature on Sept. 9,

Mr. COLLIER offered a preamble and several joint resolutions, which were read and discussed at some length.

Mr. ARMSTRONG moved that the rules be suspended for the purpose of acting on the resolutions forthwith.

Mr. COLLIER appealed to the Senate to allow the resolutions to lay on the table, in order that Senators might have full time to reflect on their importance.

Mr. SEDDON was unwilling to allow the silent sanction of the Senate to endorse for an hour these resolutions. He was in favor of disposing them without delay.

The rules were then suspended, and the resolutions were again read. They propose in substance that three Commissioners be appointed by each of the Confederate States, to repair to each of the States remaining in the old Union, and make known to the Governors of each of them that the Confederate States demand that they will, by the ballot-box, consent, that the Confederate States be allowed thenceforth to be separated from them in peace.

Mr. NASH moved the indefinite postponement of the resolutions. He regretted painfully to see such resolutions offered. He objected to them toto cœlo. He was as much opposed to sending Commissioners to Gov. MORGAN, or any other Northern Governor, as to Mr. LINCOLN. In their views and public policy they were all alike.

Mr. COLLIER, thought the action of the Senate was hasty and incopaiderate. The scheme he proposes never had been attempted. There was no clause in the Constitution that provided for a peaceful dissolution of the Union. A sort of dread filled the public mind in regard to propositions of peace, because they might do harm. If there was any expression in the preamble or resolutions which inculcates the idea that we are to desist from this struggle till the independence of this Confederacy was achieved, he would like to know it. He was willing to fight on, to fight on till we should obtain our independence; but while fighting with one hand he would hold out the olive branch of peace with the other. He hoped if the resolutions were to be buried, they would be allowed the decent respect shown to all corpses, of remaining twenty-four hours before interment.

The roll was called, and the vote stood—ayes 38, nays 1, (Mr. COLLIER.) So the preamble and resolutions were indefinitely postponed.

On motion of Mr. CHRISTIAN the Senate adjourned.

THE WAR IN TENNESSEE.

A FIGHT NEAR JONESBORO.

The Dispatch of the 12th say:

The Confederate forces in the fight at Telford's, near Jonesboro', Tenn., Tuesday, were commanded by Gen. JACKSON. While our infantry engaged the enemy in front, a cavalry force was, by a skillful manœuvre, thrown in their rear, and thus the whole party were captured or killed.

We learn that about 350 prisoners were taken, the remainder being killed or wounded. Our loss is stated at three killed and sixteen wounded. No bridges have been destroyed, and the road is open and in our possession to Jonesboro. The enemy are in considerable force at Knoxville. They have never been further east than within a mile or two of Carter's depot, twelve miles this side of Jonesboro', which place they demanded the surrender of, but the demand not having been complied with they failed to attempt its enforcement. Cumberland Gap is still held by our forces. The Lynchburgh Republican says:

As we have before announced, the Yankees captured at Knoxville a freight train of fourteen cars. Three days afterward they came up to the neighborhood of Watauga bridge with the train loaded with soldiers, supposed to be between 600 and 1,000 men in number, and demanded a surrender of the bridge, and the force at that place, Gen. JACKSON, who commanded the bridge, refuse to surrender, and determined to resist any attempt to capture the bridge. The Yankees attempted to fall back with their train to Jonesboro', but some one had removed some of the rails of the track, and the train ran off. We have heard of no casualties, except we understand that the President of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, Mr. BRANNER, was on the train, and was thrown out of the cars, and had his face considerably bruised and cut. On their way up from Knoxville to Watauga bridge the Yankees captured two trains at Morristown, which is about half way between Knoxville and Jonesboro'. The capture of these trains to us was very unfortunate. It enabled the Yankees to come up to Jonesboro' two days after they captured Knoxville, whereas without the trains they could not have made preparations to move there under two or three weeks by the ordinary roads, and they would, no doubt, have been assailed on their march by the loyal Southern men and some of their wagon trains cut off. They now have command of the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad from Jonesboro' to Knoxville, a distance of a hundred miles, and of the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad from Knoxville to Loudon, a distance of thirty miles, and have three trains to give them facilities for moving troops and supplies.

Mr. BRANNER, the President of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, has been much censured for suffering three of his trains to be captured by the enemy, and some even suspect him or his conductors or engineers of disloyalty. We hope such is not the fact; but some one has been guilty of such gross blundering as to amount almost to a crime.

We understand that a squad of Tories at Jonesboro' took a young man by the name of HARRIS out of his bed at that place, and shot him in the presence of his family. We also learn that another squad hung a man at Morristown by the name of DRURY MORRIS. We learn that neither HARRIS nor MORRIS were particularly obnoxious to the Tories. The former was a private in the Confederate service, and the latter was no way connected with the Government, except as a pork packer last winter.

If the Tories continue this diabolical spirit of revenge, the scenes that will occur in East Tennessee will exceed anything recorded in history, and will be a sad commentary upon the great leniency with which they have been treated by the commanders of the military Department of East Tennessee, for they have been most sedulously protected in their persons and property.

From information which the Atlanta Intelligencer, of Saturday evening last, deems reliable, it would appear that the enemy are crossing the Tennessee River below Bridgeport, in large force, and it is anticipated that the battle, which cannot be delayed many days longer, will take place in Northwestern Georgia. This movement of the enemy is for the purpose of flanking Chattanooga, and compelling Gen. BRAGG to abandon that almost impregnable position. Whether he will succeed or not, cannot yet be determined. The movements of the enemy in East Tennessee were evidently a mere feint, of which the Intelligencer has reason to believe that Gen. BRAGG was aware, and has acted according to this idea.

The advance of the enemy toward Georgia is a desperate move of theirs. ROSECRANS is playing a game that must either be successful in every respect, or he will have his army entirely destroyed.

THE VICKSBURGH GARRISON.

GEN. HARDEE IN COMMAND.

From the Richmond Enquirer, Sept. 11.

The following official order was issued by Lieut.-Gen. HARDEE upon assuming command of the brave troops lately defending Vicksburgh:

ENTERPRISE, Miss., August 28, 1863.

By direction of the President of the Confederate States, I assume command of the paroled prisoners of Mississippi, Arkansas, Missouri, Texas and Louisiana, recently forming part of the garrison's of Vicksburgh and Port Hudson.

I could desire no greater honor than the command of troops whose sufferings and achievements have added to the renown of their country, and compelled the admiration even of their enemies.

The place of rendezvous for all prisoners from the abovenamed States is changed from Demopolis, Ala., to Enterprise, Miss.

In anticipation of an early exchange, the work of reorganization will proceed with energy. The troops must be organized and prepared to take the field when the exchange is effected. All officers and men must be at their posts. They should be there now. To those present at the roll-calls no word is needed. Their daily answers are uttered in the manly tones of duty and honor. Many are absent. They must repair at once to the post of duty. The appeals that meet us on every side are the strongest that in any age have stirred the human heart.

Soldiers! Look at your country—the earth ravaged—property carried away, or disappearing in flame and ashes—the people murdered—the negroes arrayed in arms against the whites—cruel indignities inflicted upon women and children. Destruction marks the path of our invaders. Their motto is, "Woe to the conquered." He who falters in this hour of his country's peril is a wretch who would compound for the mere boon of life, robbed of all that makes life tolerable.

Fellow soldiers: There is but one path to follow. It leads to the camp. Come to your colors and stand beside your comrades, who, with heroic constancy, are confronting the enemy. Choose now between the glory of successfully defending all that entitles you to the name of men, and the infamy of creeping abjectly to the feet of a foe, who will spurn your submission and despise your cowardice.

ATTEMPT TO HANG HON. D. W. VOORHEES.

CINCINNATI, Monday, Sept. 14.

As the second battalion of the Sixty-third Indiana regiment was returning from Terre Haute on Saturday, an attempt was made to hang Hon. D. W. VOORHEES, who was reëlected to Congress from Indiana at the last election.

Mr. VOORHEES was traveling as a passenger in the same train with the soldiers. He was rescued by the officers, but compelled by the soldiers to leave the train at Greencastle.

All the Indiana Troops Ordered to the Field.

CINCINNATI, Monday, Sept. 14.

The Commercial has a special dispatch from Indianapolis, which says:

All the troops in Indiana, except the Provost Guards, are ordered to the field.

Gen. WILCOX is ordered to report to Gen. BURNSIDE.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, Sept. 14.

The upper part of the storehouses in the northwest corner of the Navy-yard were destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is estimated at $75,000. The ship-houses had a narrow escape.

OUR CASUALTIES AND CAPTURES.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC,
Monday, Sept. 14.

Gen. PLEASANTON has advanced to the Rapidan. The rebels were in position, with infantry, artillery and cavalry, to prevent our crossing.

Our casualties yesterday were three killed and forty wounded. Among the latter was Gen. CUSTER, not seriously, however. He commanded a brigade in Gen. KILPATRICK's division, and was wounded while gallantly charging a battery of the enemy, in which attack three guns were captured.

THE FIGHTING ON SUNDAY.

DETAILS FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Sept. 14.

L. L. CROUNSE sends the following to this bureau: PLEASANTON's cavalry corps, supported by Second corps, crossed the Rappahannock at Kelley's, Rappahannock and Sulphur Springs Fords yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. They advanced rapidly, and drove in the enemy's pickets about two miles from the river, and from that point through Brandy Station to Culpepper.

A running fight was kept up, the rebel cavalry constantly falling back. At 1 o'clock our forces entered Culpepper, the rebels retiring in great haste, leaving considerable property in our hands. During the chase several very spirited dashes were made by our cavalry, resulting in the capture of five pieces of artillery, with caissons and horses, and 43 prisoners. Two guns were taken by BUFORD's command and one by KILPATRICK's. Two of them are 3-inch rifles, and one a brass 12-pounder. A large train narrowly escaped capture at Culpepper. It managed to get away just as our forces entered the place. At 3 P. M. Gen. PLEASANTON was one mile south of Culpepper, reconnoitering all the country very thoroughly. No indications of the presence or locality of the rebel infantry have yet been discovered. The guns and prisoners were brought to headquarters last night.

THE FRENCH ARMY INACTIVE.

FOREY'S SEVERITY IN MEXICO.

SUMMARY DEPORTATION OF CITIZENS.

Rumored Change in the Liberal Ministry.

The Troubles in Saint Domingo--Reinforcements Sent to Gen. Rivera.

Our Havana Correspondence.

HAVANA, Monday, Sept. 7, 1863.

The English Mail steamer Conway arrived on the morning of the 5th, and brought news from Vera Cruz to the 1st inst. The inactivity of the French army appears to continue—their only military attempts being a raid or the surprise of some weak post. FOREY protests he will attempt no important movement till the rainy season is over. At present the French are in ecstacies of rage because three of their soldiers have been killed in the vicinity of Tlalpam, and no measures of severity appear to them sufficiently strong to punish the inhabitants of that unlucky town. Accordingly, Gen. FOREY, with the approbation of the Regency, has ordered the Corporation of that place to be dissolved, the Prefect to be superseded by a military Governor, a certain number of the inhabitants to be seized as hostages, and the town to be fined six thousand dollars. He declares, moreover, that if they go on committing similar acts, the town shall be razed to the ground. In connection with this affair there have been numerous arrests in the City of Mexico, which took place in the night. Messrs. RENE, MASSON, RIO and six others, have since been put on shipboard, but whither destined, or still to be confined on board, we are not told, but the Regency avows that a day did not intervene between arrest and deportation. The Regency has issued a proclamation on the subject, in which, after boasting of their impartiality in having abstained from all investigation of past acts; permitting their opponents to return to their homes in safety, and to the enjoyment of the property stolen from the country, upon the sole condition of behaving as quiet citizens; and, if not adhering to the Imperial Government, at least not engaging in intrigues. But this mildness in victory has not been appreciated by certain individuals, who only saw in it two things—fear, and a means of conspiring. The Regency owes to the quiet towns a proof that it watches, and will not hesitate at any act of severity which may be necessary against wretches who have not even the courage which accompanies direct crime, and who employ vile agents (but less vile than themselves) to commit crimes, while they skulk in the shade.

On the 28th July the Legislature of Guanajuato concluded its sessions, when the Governor, DOBLADO, sent a long message, which was quite the reverse of favorable to intervention, although the imperialists try to persuade the world that he aims at the part of GEORGE MONK. On the contrary, he strongly advocates the cause of the Constitutional Government; but the lovers of courts and kings find one small piece of consolation, he does not mention JUAREZ; and hence they would infer—all they wish. Besides, says La Sociedad, we are told that Gen. URAGA had carried a message from DOBLADO to JUAREZ, exacting a complete change of policy and of ministers, and that JUAREZ replied that he would change his ministry when and how he likes, and not give way to the pretensions of private persons, which were entirely illegal. It is added that in spite of such an answer, the ministry had resigned, whether their resignation was accepted was as yet unknown.

The numbers of the Liberal troops in the district more immediate to the scene of war are thus estimated by their enemies. In Guadalajara there are 2,000, including a body of irregulars. In Guanajuato there are about 4,000. In Morelia 1,000. Between Celaya, Maravatio and other towns, 9,000 or 10,000. The first division is under D. PORFIRIO DIAZ, who last week left Acambau for Celaya in order to station himself at San Juan del Rio. He has about 5,000 men, infantry, cavalry and artillery. The second division, under Gen. ESCANDON, in Maravatio consists of 4,000 men with two batteries of rifled cannon.

JUAREZ has sent to Morelia 600 riflemen of New-LEON, besides 700 of infantry who were marching to sustain COMTO and oppose a body of lancers stationed in Huerta. The commercial men of Morelia were still forbidden to send goods to Mexico City, and in consequence were suffering great losses. This prohibition is extended to all that comes from Mexico and other towns that do not recognise JUAREZ. A circular warns the Governors to seize all such property and place it at the orders of the Minister of the Treasury. The Governor of Michoacan had made representations against this measure.

The Cronista says that the Liberal troops under Gen. O'HORAN had been defeated by Col. CHAVES, on the road from Lagos to Guadalajara. CHAVES belongs to the army under MEJIA. All letters and travelers agree in stating that a large Liberal force was about to advance to Cuantitlan, their object being to prevent supplies of provisions to the French army in Mexico City, and also to clear the surrounding country. The Vera Cruz paper says it can scarcely believe in such an act of madness. Col. VALDES, under Gen. BERTHIER, writes that he had obtained a victory over the Liberal leader BALLESTEROS, on the 8th of August, in Tejaplico, near Tobaca. As only 11 prisoners were made, we may conclude the encounter was not on a very large scale. Tyuala was occupied by Gen. VICARIO, the city being abandoned by the Liberals as he approached. An expedition was planned against Tulancingo, but no opposition was expected, the Liberal forces being reduced to a garrison of 400 men; the Cronista estimates the garrison at only 150 men. It has been occupied by a force of 2,200 men, French and Mexicans, under the Colonel of the Sixty-second infantry, after a fight with TELLEZ. The imperialists had a force of 3,000 men, including 1,400 Mexican troops, 800 infantry and 600 cavalry in Mineral del Monte, yet they were unable to keep the country in a quiet state, their soldiers being continually shot, and either killed or badly wounded. Nor are they more successful in other parts which they have held for a long time. A large quantity of goods belonging to merchants and valued at $80,000 left Mexico for the interior, but the Soledad, a Juarist body of troops, seized the whole. In Guanajuato the property of persons who continue to reside in places occupied by the French and their allies was ordered to be confiscated, at least, so they said in Vera Cruz. JUAREZ had decreed a contribution of one per cent. upon all capitals exceeding $500.

A periodical entitled Review of the Late Events in Mexico, and published in that city, has the following paragraph: "The festival of the 15th August, in honor of NAPOLEON III., was celebrated with glee and more or less brilliancy in all the localities attached to the intervention and the Empire. In the festivity, the absence of the British flag in front of the legation of that country excited remark. From the documents published in the St. Louis papers, it appears that up to the 21st of July, Mr. CORWIN, the Minister of the United States, although residing in Mexico, maintained diplomatic relations with JUAREZ. The latter withdrew the Exequatur from the Peruvian Consul, Señor SANCHEZ, for having been present in uniform at the ball of the French officers; and the Regency has just given Señor CORPANCHO, the Peruvian Minister, his passports, judging his residence in Mexico incompatible with the maintenance of friendly relations with that country." The same review insists that JUAREZ has appointed DOBLADO Chief Minister, and that BERRIOZABAL, FUENTE and TERAN had resigned, URAGA being made Commander-in-Chief.

Gen. TOVAR, with his division, quartered in the town of Mascota, in the State of Jalisco, had joined the imperialists, inducing the neighboring towns and villages to follow his example. Also some places, as Tepostlan, &c., in the South, had joined the Franco-Mexicans. But TOVAR's defection had considerably weakened ORTEGA in Guadalajara, and the Imperialists boast that he cannot make any sort of resistance; he, however, appears of another opinion, for he goes on steadily with the fortifications.

The commission appointed to offer the crown to the Archduke MAXIMILIAN, and most of whom went out by the French mail steamer Tampico, having the crown and sceptre on board, is composed of ESTRADA, the grand planner of a monarchy, and for many years banished on that account, Hidalgo, Suarez, Peredo, Count Del Valle, Escandon, Landa, Aguilar, Leon, Woll, Miranda and Zgiesias.

The San Luis papers speak very sanguinely of ultimate success, and give a list of nineteen States within whose limits the invaders have not dared to enter: they boast that FOREY can with difficulty keep open his communication with Vera Cruz, and is obliged to send immensely strong escorts with his convoys; while in spite of his large army he does not dare to undertake any movements. They are delighted with the United States Minister, who on learning that the United States Consul, at Manzanillo, had made some official arrangements with the reactionist

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Justice Bosworth.

Marguereta Schaux vs. Magdalena Butcher.—This is an application ex parte for an order of arrest for assault and battery.

It is conceded that the defendant is a married woman, though the affidavit does not state whether she is or not.

Before the code, a married woman could not be held to bail in such an action, though the husband might, and be compelled to give bail for both. (Graham's Pr. 127.)

The code has not changed the law on this point. (Solomon vs. War et ux., 2 Hilt., 179.) Chapter 90, of the laws of 1860, and chapter 172 of the laws of 1862, do not profess to touch this question.

The law of 1860 declares that "no bargain or contract" of a married woman in respect to her separate property, or in or about carrying on any trade in business under the statutes of this State, shall bind her husband or render his property liable therefore. (Laws of 1860, p. 159, § 8.)

His liability for her torts and her exemption from liability to be held to bail in an action therefor, are not affected by these statutes. (Laws of 1862, p. 344, §§ and 345, §5.) The application must be denied.

Decisions.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Clerke.

The People vs. Thomas Lynes et al.—The writs of habeas corpus against each of the defendants are hereby dismissed, and defendants remanded to custody of the Warden of the City prison until they shall be discharged by due course of law, there being probable cause to believe defendants guilty of the crime of robbery, of which they stand charged.

Clark et al. vs. Craig.—Injunction continued, costs to abide the event.

Griswold vs. Power et al.—Motion granted.

Schaffer et al. vs. Edgerton.—Prisoner remanded, and writ dismissed, on the ground that the remedy, if any, is by motion.

The People ex rel. Sallers vs. Coles.—Fifth, sixth and seventh interrogatories must be amended.

Gould vs. Mortimer Jr. et al.—Injunction continued on the condition that the plaintiff furnish an undertaking with two sureties to be approved, to the plaintiff in the foreclosure suit to indemnify him against depreciation, without costs.

Personal.

—Parson Brownlow is following up the rebels in Nashville with a sharp stick. In a card published in the Nashville Union, he says:

MR. EDITOR: I seized, on the 31st ult., thirteen pianos, the property of a noted rebel, who has gone South, after giving "aid, countenance and comfort to the rebellion." After I had made my seizure, and notified the parties having these pianos in their possession to hold them subject to my orders, making a record of the fact in my book of that date, other parties have come in and attached a portion of these instruments and removed them to their premises, on a plea of debts due to them from the said Elliott. I have since retaken them through the United States Marshal, the officer of the Federal Court. The conflict will be, therefore, one between the Courts. I think I know what I am doing, and parties setting up claims against Elliott, whose loyalty is no better than his, will find by the time this contest is through with, that they are barking up the wrong tree.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The advance of Gen. PLEASANTON'S cavalry, which was commenced on Sunday morning, and resulted in pushing the enemy south of Culpepper, was continued yesterday. Our dispatches state that these troopers had pressed forward to the Rapidan, finding the rebels (probably the corps of EWELL and HILL) massed there in force to dispute their passage. No engagement occurred. Our casualties in Sunday's fighting were three killed and forty wounded—Gen. CURTER being among the latter, but his injury is slight. We captured five pieces of artillery and forty-three prisoners.

Under date of New-Orleans, Sept. 1, a correspondent of the Chicago Times writes: "Many sailing vessels have been chartered; troops are hurriedly put on board; troops at Ship Island have been sent; others are following—for the Rio Grande! The Monroe doctrine will find numerous advocates at Brownsville in less than three days! NAPOLEON will find that he is not to remain undisturbed. Rumor says that a large body of Mexicans are awaiting the arrival of the United States forces—JUAREZ'S party, I suppose. This is conjecture merely. The city is rife with rumors that the star-spangled banner will soon wave in triumph over the Mexican city of Matamoras! This latter place is almost immediately opposite Brownsville."

The former Superintendent of the Tredegar Iron Works at Richmond reached Washington on Sept. 10, from that place. He states that the National occupation of East Tennessee caused the greatest suprise and gloom in Richmond. A great battle was anticipated, instead of a rebel retreat. He also states that troops for LEE'S army had been arriving quite freely at Richmond for the past few days. There was a general fear that Charleston would be destroyed by bombardment. The Richmond Sentinel takes the same view. It also states that at the last meeting of the Commissioners for the exchange of prisoners, nothing was done.

FOREIGN NEWS.

By the Hansa at this port, and the Arabia off Cape Race, we have our European mails to the 2d inst., and a telegraphic summary of news to the 5th, three days later. Earl RUSSELL has written a reply to the memorial of the Emancipation Society relative to the steam rams in the Mersey, in which he asserts that his attention has long been anxiously directed to these vessels, but in the absence of positive proof that they are designed to commit hostilities against the Government of the United States, he is powerless to interfere. He regrets that the evidence has not been furnished. The Paris Moniteur justifies the welcome given to the pirate Florida at Brest, on the plea that it is the duty of neutrals to permit belligerent vessels to procure means for navigation, and the Florida entered the French harbor to repair damages. A pamphlet, entitled "France, Mexico and the Confederates," has been issued in Paris, which is generally looked upon as expressing the opinions of LOUIS NAPOLEON, and a speedy recognition of the Confederacy by the French Government is anticipated. Russia has signified her intention to grant a liberal Constitution to Poland. The Liverpool Cotton Market was easier; Breadstuffs were steady, and Consols were quoted at 93⅜ @93¾. The Confederate loan had further declined on account of our successes at Charleston.

The steamship Ocean Queen arrived yesterday from Aspinwall, with $193,584 in specie, and advices from the Central and South American States to the 6th inst. The clergy of Panama, whose refusal to take the oath of allegiance to the Liberal Government it was supposed would lead to exile, have been permitted by Gen. MOSQUERA to remain in the country. They are bound, however, to keep the peace, and are prohibited from holding divine service or engaging in any priestly office. Private advices from Guatemala say that the foreign Ministers have solicited CARRERA to treat with BARRIOS for a peacable settlement of the present difficulties. Dates from Salvador to Aug. 24 say that BARRIOS still holds out. His army is daily increasing. His troops are regularly paid, and keep in good spirits. In Chili, the opening of the Valparaiso and Santingo Railroad, early in September, is looked for with much interest. The difficulties between that Republic and Bolivia remain in statu quo.

By the steamer Roanoke, from Havana, we are put in possession of Mexican news to the 1st inst. The inhabitants of the City of Mexico were almost reduced to a condition of famine by the faithful observance of the stringent measures of JUAREZ regarding traffic with the invaders. FOREY had signified his intention not to advance his forces into the interior until after the rainy season had passed. There had been numerous arrests in the City of Mexico in consequence of the frequent assassination of French soldiers and for refusal to take the oath of allegiance. Some prominent persons, for the latter reason, had been summarily exiled to Martinique, among whom was MANUEL PAINO, the well-known author. FOREY had revoked the Exequatur of the Peruvian Minister for alleged correspondence with JUAREZ. The reports that Gens. DOBLADO and COMONFORT had declared for the new régime are pronounced unqualified falsehoods.

We have, also, by the Roanoke, later advices from St. Domingo. The troubles there are increasing. The rebels are in great force, and Gen. RIVERA, commanding the Spanish troops, calls for reinforcements, which are being forwarded from Havana with the utmost dispatch. Several Spanish war steamers had also sailed for Puerta Plata, and when the Roanoke left Havana the greatest activity existed in shipping artillery, ammunition and mules to aid in the suppression of the insurgents.

GENERAL NEWS.

From the returns brought by telegraph of the State election in Maine, held yesterday, there seems to be no doubt that the Union ticket has been overwhelmingly successful. This insures the election of SAMUEL CORNY for Governor over BRADBURY, the Democratic candidate. The Republican gains in Portland, heretofore a strong Democratic city, are very large.

The Board of Aldermen met yesterday, and adopted a resolution by Mr. HARDY, directing the Corporation Counsel to have the injunction upon the Mayor, Comptroller and Clerk of the Common Council, restraining them from acting under the $3,000,000 exemption ordinance, dissolved forthwith. Mr. HARDY expressed surprise that an injunction had been sued out on a pretence of the ordinance being illegal, in the face of the opinion of the Corporation Counsel, that not this, but the Supervisors' exemption ordinance, was illegal. When the injunction would be dissolved, the Common Council could act under the ordinance, as they had originally intended. The Supervisors' ordinance was operating satisfactorily, and no one wished to place any obstacle in their way, not even any member of the Common Council, but the extraordinary step taken to interfere with the Common Council, Mr. HARDY intimated, gave good ground for supposing that the Supervisors were tampering with interference. A communication was received from DAVID T. VALENTINE, Esq., transmitting the resolution recently adopted by the Board of Health, directing the City Inspector to continue to clean the streets after the exhaustion of the regular appropriation, and until the Legislature shall provide for the debt which may be created, and also requesting the Common Council to issue bonds to raise the necessary means. It was referred to the Finance Committee. Adjourned to Thursday next at one o'clock, P. M.

The Board of Councilmen laid on the table a resolution by Mr. O'BRIEN, directing the Corporation Counsel to have the injunction on the $3,000,000 exemption ordinance dissolved, and concurred with the Aldermen in adopting their resolution of like purport. The Comptroller reported an expenditure of $60,383 50 from the Family Aid Fund for the fortnight ending Sept. 5. The Board concurred in the ordinance affixing a penalty of $1,000 for breaking up or removing pavement without the authority of the Common Council. The Board adjourned to 4 o'clock P. M. on Thursday.

In the Court of General Sessions yesterday, before Judge MCCUNN, GEO. SMITH pleaded guilty to grand larceny, and was sentenced to the State Prison for two years. MARY MILLER was convicted of grand larceny, and sent to the State Prison for two years. HENRY GIRARD pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny, and was remanded for sentence.

The fluctuations on the railway list at the Stock Exchange yesterday were 1@3 per cent. The ultimate quotations are higher than on Saturday. Gold was 2½ per cent. up in the afternoon on rumors of Southern recognition by France. Money market steady at 6@7 per cent.

Breadstuffs were more abundant and in more active demand, yesterday, at generally firmer prices. Provisions were quiet, though buyers had any existing advantage. A lively inquiry prevailed for Wool, Tallow, Hay, and Rio Coffee. Cotton was quiet and unsettled. Hops, Metals, Seeds, Sugars, and Spices, were selling moderately. Whisky was in improved request. Freights were inactive.

The Forty-fourth-street Cattle Market opened Monday morning with about 3,000 beeves in the yards, which were increased by fresh arrivals to 3,600 by noon. This was in addition to some 700 sold Friday and Saturday, besides near 1,400 disposed of at Bergen, making a large supply for the week. Trade was moderately brisk at the opening sales, with a trifling decline in prices, but as more droves kept coming in, they continued to fall off in value, and before night the decline was fully ½c. ℔ lb., with many remnants of droves unsold. Prime cattle were scarce, and brought 10c.@10¼c. ℔ lb., net weight; fair to good steers, 9c.@9½c., and some very poor animals were sold as low as 6c. The cattle were not as good as they were one week ago.

Mr. Seward's Diplomatic Circular.

The circular of the Secretary of State to our representatives abroad is a masterly summing up of the progress of the Union arms during the last twelvemonth, and cannot fail to make a strong impression upon foreign Governments. The rebel agents will find it impossible to impeach the accuracy of any part of it. It is perfectly free not only from any statement which can be disputed or doubted, but from all that grouping and coloring which, if it be skillfully done, is quite as potent as any misstatement, to "make out a case." Throughout, there is a singular air of strict judicial fidelity. The facts are set forth with extraordinary clearness, and exactly as they are. There is no attempt to increase their effect by argument. They are left to force their own conclusion; and to every fair European mind they make the conclusion unavoidable, that the quickest and surest way for European nations to obtain a peace in this country is "to withdraw support and favor from the insurgents, and to leave the adjustment of our domestic controversies exclusively with the people of the United States."

Mr. SEWARD in this missive of course could not do otherwise than assume that the restoration of peace was the sole concern of foreign nations. This concern is perfectly legitimate. Not only humane considerations, but the disturbance of commerce, and the deprivation of manufacturing material, fully justify all the civilized Powers in a very strong anxiety for a termination of our domestic war. Our Secretary of State, in his official capacity, has no right to suppose that any other feeling influences them. Even a hint from him that the real animus of their conduct is a desire to have the rebellion prevail, and our Government destroyed, would be not only a discourtesy, but a positive affront. It would be equivalent to charging them with being actual accomplices to our assassination. The official imputation of such a crime would leave our Government no alternative but a declaration of war; for the nation that will not defend itself against all attempts upon its life, whether foreign or domestic, thereby proves itself to be so impotent and spiritless as to be no longer fit to live. Mr. SEWARD, unless he means war, is bound by a regard for our own national dignity, as well as for their sensibilities, to accept the representations of the English and French Governments, that the recognition of "the Confederacy" will be determined by them purely by the fact of its demonstrated ability to maintain its independence. He must suppose that they have no policy in the premises but that which inexorable facts impose. On that diplomatic ground he has shown, in the most irresistible way, by his array of facts, what that policy must be. It is not possible for any sane European statesman honestly to maintain, in the face of these facts, that the rebels are likely to make good their independence.

In time past, we have been disposed to make great allowance for the general disbelief in Europe that our rebellion would be overthrown. The movement was far more colossal than anything of the kind ever known in Europe; and those which most nearly approached it had invariably succeeded, save in the single case of the Hungarian revolution which failed solely because of Russian intervention against it. It is not at all strange that the European Governments which have themselves, in their past history, so often succumbed to rebellions, that had no such strength and vantage-ground as this slaveholders' rebellion, should have so quickly concluded that our Government had no chance. The strength of this peculiar Government had never been tried, and, of course, they measured by their own standard. Their misjudgment was a thousand times more excusable than that of the multitude of Americans known as the Copperhead party, who have persistently maintained that the rebellion could never be put down by force. These people ought to have had American ideas enough in their brains, and American blood enough in their veins, to have known and felt that their Government, engaged in such a cause, could not but conquer. But in the face of the wretched incapacity of this class of Americans in this respect, it does not become us to reproach foreigners three thousand miles away for similar lack of faith.

But there is another view of the matter. Though Mr. SEWARD cannot imply that England and France desire the disruption of this Republic, yet it is the general belief of our people that such is the fact—and that this is the real motive for their favorable treatment of "the Confederates." If this is so, it does not follow that Mr. SEWARD'S conclusive proof that the rebellion is fast losing strength, will cause them to forego all intention of interfering. It may be that their very certainty that "the Confederacy" will of itself gain its independence has been the prime reason why they have not openly taken sides with it. It would be folly in them to expose themselves to the risks of war in order to promote a result already sure. But if they now see that this result is not sure—that it is in fact absolutely impossible without some new agency—there may be a temptation to intervene that never before existed. So the question after all is, not whether Mr. SEWARD has demonstrated that the "Confederacy" has become so weakened that it cannot stand alone, but whether he has proved that it cannot be made to stand even though foreign Powers should undertake to hold it up.

We consider that even this is made apparent though of course he did not make a point of it. The foreign Governments, if they heed at all his truthful exposition, cannot but conclude that "the Confederacy" is too far gone to be saved by anything they can do. Even an outright declaration of war in its favor though it might do us great harm, could not mend its broken fortunes. With the coast entirely in our possession, such a war would be wholly, or almost wholly, naval. It would only to a very small extent, at the utmost, divert our land forces, which are now so rapidly bringing the rebels to the dust. Indeed, were the allies to confront us on land, it would be futile. In all probability the rebellion will be substantially crushed out before this year closes. Mr. SEWARD does not say this, for he confines himself to the past. Yet his statement of the progress of events leads directly to some such conclusion. But it takes time to prepare for war—particularly for a war in which the United States, with its present tremendous power, is to be the assailed party on its own soil. "The Confederacy" will, in all likelihood, be at its last gasp before these preparations could be completed. This ought to settle the whole matter. However much the foreign Powers may desire to rescue the Jeff. Davis Government, it is now too late. If such an opportunity ever existed, it has now passed forever.

The Policy of the Rebels—Our Present Duty.

There is now very little doubt—or at least as little as there can ever be about anything in a war of this magnitude—that all the efforts of the rebels will be henceforward devoted to a policy of delay and obstruction, for the purpose, if possible, of protracting the war until the expiration of the term of enlistment of the three years' men of our army. The difference between our mode of raising troops and theirs, has formed for some time past a prominent element in their calculations. They have watched closely the expiration of our short terms of enlistment, and endeavored to strike heavy blows after the discharge of large bodies of our troops. LEE'S last invasion was carefully planned and prepared so as to take place after the discharge of the two years' men of HOOKER'S army. It failed, mainly because our loss from that cause, great as it undoubtedly was, was very much smaller than was supposed at Richmond, and the terrible series of disasters which have followed it would unquestionably cause much greater despondency than even that which exists at the South, if the leaders did not cherish the hope of being able to hold out until next May, when we shall lose at one stroke all the men in our army, except those who are being raised under the present draft, and the few who have voluntarily entered during the past Winter. They will, therefore, now probably concentrate the remnant of their forces, which together will constitute at least one tolerably formidable army, and play a strictly defensive game, offering every possible obstruction to our advance, obstinately defending all defensible positions, and using the spade vigorously, but carefully avoiding all actions likely to be decisive in their result.

If they can in this way ward off all heavy or crushing blows until December, they will secure the aid of their old adversary—the mud—which has already twice paralyzed our movements for months together, at apparently critical periods of the war. Once the Winter rains set in, active operations will be all but impossible along the whole theatre of the war, both in Virginia, Mississippi and by ROSECRANS. In Virginia, an effort will probably be made to get our army into a slough in front of some position like Fredericksburgh, to wait month after month for that "fine weather" which notoriously never comes in Winter. During this interval the rebels would be busily engaged in dragging the remnants of the Southern population into the field, getting rams built in England, and besieging LOUIS NAPOLEON for recognition and aid. We should in May be able to resume operations—the state of the roads would not permit it any sooner—but by this time, the largest and most valuable portion of the army in the field—that which was recruited from the very flower of our population, and has served through the whole war—would be on the eve of returning home, and we should be left with nothing better to finish our work with than the 800,000 comparatively raw substitutes whom we are now raising. The rebel leaders know all this as well as we do, and a moment's reflection will show any one the strong motive which it furnishes them for pursuing a policy of delay—or, in turf parlance, for "riding a waiting race."

The moral of all this is obvious. Everybody in the community who wishes to see the war brought to a close this Winter—and we believe all parties come under this denomination—ought to do all that in him lies to swell the ranks of the army in the field now, so as to enable our various Generals to strike fiercely during the next two months. Every shot fired between this and the first of November is worth a volley afterward. Our business at present is to force the fighting, so that the mud may, when it comes, render the Confederacy no better service than to furnish it with a grave. And secondly, as nothing is sure in war—as we may not close the struggle before Spring—we are bound to make every possible exertion to frustrate the hopes based by our enemies on the discharge of the three years' men, by having a large and respectable army ready to take its place creditably. There will be all the less excuse for any remissness on these points on our part, because we now do really see the end. It may not come this Fall, but if we take the proper precautions, it is not in the power of the rebels to postpone it beyond next Fall. There are few things more certain than that we shall have peace by July next, if we keep up our armies in the interval. This will secure it, but nothing else will.

The Texas Expedition.

Correspondence from New-Orleans, under date of the 1st and 2d inst., gives some information concerning a great military and naval expedition which was then leaving that city, and the destination of which was generally believed to be the State of Texas and the line of the Rio Grande. We should judge that altogether something like 20,000 men are to be sent on the expedition—most of them veterans from the army of Gen. GRANT—GRANT himself, with some of his most distinguished officers, being at New-Orleans.

Since the commencement of the war, no operations of magnitude have been undertaken against the rebellion in the important State of Texas. The largest body of men we have ever had there was the small force on Galveston Island, which was captured by the rebels under MAGRUDER, nearly a year ago. There have been trifling affairs also at Sabine City and other points on the coast, and even now, we have a few score of California volunteers, under Gen. CARLETON, occupying one or two of the posts far up on the Rio Grande. Beside this, we have kept up a pretty strict blockade of the Texas coast, and this is the sum total of our operations in Texas. But the blockade has been nullified in a great measure by the facilities offered for the introduction of goods by way of Matamoras and Brownsville, and this traffic it has been quite impossible to prevent.

It is not yet beyond doubt that the expedition is intended for Texas; but, if so it be, it is certain that it could not find a more promising or inviting field anywhere in the Southwest.

THE OLD REBEL GAME.—BRAGG'S rebels kept on bragging up to the very hour that they skedaddled from Chattanooga. The Montgomery Advertiser published a ferocious letter from Chattanooga, dated on the last day of last month, daring ROSECRANS to cross the Tennessee River, and prophesying that, if he did so, he would "rue the day that he exchanged his feline cunning and caution for the lion's audacity," as "the men of the Army of the Tennessee wish him to fall into no securer trap than this." The writer was sure that "ROSECRANS' whole army would fall an easy prey to BRAGG, as BRAGG can concentrate his whole force upon the foe—a force now grown enthusiastically confident, desperate, and determined to win victory, or fall in the struggle." "No one in the army," quoth the boasting rebel, "doubts the result."

The day after the rebel jackass had written all this, the army of Gen. ROSECRANS began to cross the Tennessee "with lion's audacity;" and on the 3d of this month he himself, with the greater part of his army, was on the south bank. We have not yet heard that he rued the day, or that he got into a trap, or that his whole army fell an easy prey to BRAGG, or that BRAGG'S enthusiastic, confident, desperate and determined force either won a victory or fell in the struggle. We have heard that BRAGG and all his army gave leg bail and fled from before ROSECRANS, which is, perhaps, what the rebel writer would have foretold, if he had dared to tell the truth, or had known how to state it: for, to use his own language, "no one could doubt the result" of a contest between the armies of ROSECRANS and BRAGG.

The letter, from which we have quoted, gives evidence that the rebels were not blind to the excellent opportunity presented to them, by the double advance line of ROSECRANS and BURNSIDE, to strike a blow at one of our two advancing columns. The writer, who attributes his information to an eminent general officer in the rebel army, says, "it cannot be believed that ROSECRANS would duplicate the error of HOOKER at Chancellorsville, by separating his forces on our two wings, and thus giving us the opportunity to mass the whole Army of Tennessee upon either of the opposing forces that we may deem the most vulnerable." But we did operate on two lines, and notwithstanding the opportunity offered, the rebels made no attempt to embrace it. The fact is, that one of the two Union columns—that of ROSECRANS—was more than able for BRAGG; while, had BRAGG attempted to advance on Knoxville or Kingston to attack BURNSIDE, ROSECRANS would at once have planted himself in a position where BRAGG'S "line of retreat" would not have been as open as he found it on the 8th inst.

A GREAT MISTAKE.—The Democratic party is daily becoming an object of greater interest and importance. The London Morning Herald is angry and disappointed with it because it has not resisted the Conscription act to the death. The Richmond Enquirer proposes that LEE should invade Pennsylvania in order to help it at the next election; and now the Richmond Sentinel, in an article from which we quoted yesterday, wants it to rise in arms at once against the Administration, and then "hang LINCOLN, SEWARD, GREELEY and the rest." If it answers all the expectations entertained of it, it will have a rather troublous existence for the next six months. The wonder is how foreigners and rebels have been led to expect these desperate exploits from it. It is notoriously peaceful, law-abiding and loyal, and yet every domestic traitor and alien enemy constantly speaks of it as "ripe for treasons, stratagems and spoils," and looks to it constantly for an armed revolt. The diffusion of such an impression about it is a singular instance of popular misconception.

DISPATCHES TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Sept. 14.

PREDATORY EXCURSION BY REBELS.

On Sunday night a small party of rebels crossed the Potomac River at the mouth of Seneca Creek and helped themselves to horses and other property. On a previous occasion another gang came over, and after depredating on several farms carried off a few mules. The owner followed the thieves and reported the facts to WHITE, the partisan leader, who denounced the act, instituted a search, recovered the mules and sent the offenders to Richmond for trial. The owner of the mules did not fare so well on this side. He was arrested and is now in prison for holding intercourse with the enemy.

THE CAPTURE OF GUNS FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

Three of the guns recently captured by the Minnesota, near Fort Fisher, in the vicinity of Wilmington, N. C., have reached Washington. They are of English manufacture. One is a Whitworth gun. They are splendid pieces of ordnance, and apparently been used only a short time.

Amusements.

THE PARK THEATRE—FIRST NIGHT OF MR. HARRISON'S COMPANY.—This charming little theatre, the first attempt of our sister city in the dramatic line proper, was opened last night to the fullest house we have ever seen. Long before the rise of the curtain the cheerful placard of "standing room only, left," was placed conspicuously at the door, and hundreds were compelled to go away disappointed. We have already given a detailed description of the house, which for aptness and elegance of finish is a credit to the city, and an exception even in the long list of Metropolitan theatres. The bill for the night included "Married Life" and the "Loan of a Lover." The company includes but few well-known names, prominent among which are Mr. G. H. ANDREWS, an "Old Park" favorite, and Miss MARY SHAW, sister to Mrs. HOEY and Mrs. WATKINS. It would not be fair to criticise closely the initial performances of an opening night, and yet it affords us pleasure to state that Mr. HARRISON'S cast, scenery and appointments are by no means inferior even to those which at WALLACK'S last season we so pleasantly remember.

Mr. TERRELL'S scenes are worthy of special commendation, ranking very far beyond those of ordinary establishments, and worthy really to be examined as works of art.

After the first piece, Mr. HARRISON, who was loudly called for, made a neat and telling speech, thanking the audience for their generous patronage, and promising to do all in his power to deserve a continuance of popular favor.

The orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. JNO. M. LORETZ, Jr., was well balanced, plastic and practically useful.

UNITED STATES OF COLOMBIA.

All Quiet—The Presidential Election—Miscellaneous Intelligence.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Sunday, Sept. 6, 1863.

Our dates from the interior and Bogota, the capital of the Confederation, are to the middle of August. Everything was quiet. The report brought by H. B. Majesty's ship Ariande, from Carthagena, that a movement had taken place at Bogota in favor of the Conservatives, proving to be false. A predatory party that has caused much terror to the people of Bogota, has been broken up by the Government troops and dispersed.

Everything is quiet on the Isthmus. Some little movement is observable in regard to the Presidential election for Colombia which is to come off in the Spring. Señor MANUEL MARILLO and Gen. MOSQUERA, both of the liberal or present Government party, are the only candidates spoken of or who are likely to be presented to the people. If Gen. MOSQUERA should withdraw his name, as it is reported he will, then Señor MURILLO will have little or no opposition. Señor MURILLO is the successor of Gen. HERRAN as Minister from this Republic to Washington.

Señor JUSTO AROSEMENA, who is appointed Minister of this Republic to the South and Central American States, with full powers to regulate all questions between them and the United States of Colombia, sails for Lima on the 9th inst.

WILLIAM WILLIAMS, the American, who killed Capt. OTIS, of San Francisco, in the train on the Panama Railroad, and who was sentenced to death for the offence—but who has been kept in durance for four years in this city, waiting the decision for his appeal against his sentence—died of consumption ten days since. About fifty of the one hundred culprits in the chain gain, who were pardoned their crimes and released, lately, have been convicted of new crimes, and are again at their old quarters.

The priests still are incorrigible, and the churches—including the great cathedrals—remain closed. None of the faithful can be given in marriage, and those who die have to take the risks on themselves, the padres no longer standing in the gap. By the way, several priests of the liberal party have ventured to reopen some of the temples of Bogota, and the long candles are lighted, and the "smoke of the incense" goes up as heretofore.

JOSEPH CAUSCHMAN, Esq., late United States Consul at Valparaise, who has been superseded in office, arrived at Panama yesterday, and goes to California.

The rains are flooding the Isthmus at present, and the health of the country is not good. The small-pox, however, that has made some ravages both in Aspinwall and Panama, has nearly run its course.

In the port of Panama we have the United States sloop-of-war St. Marys, and Her British Majesty's ship Charibdis. The British screw frigate Ariadne left Aspinwall on the 4th inst. No United States vessel there. Commander WOODWORTH—lately appointed to the United States steam corvette Narragansett, in place of Commander STANLEY—arrived on the 3d, on the Ocean Queen, and proceeded to Acapulco to join his vessel. The United States flagship Lancaster, Admiral BELL, is also at Acapulco. The United States steam war vessel Saginaw is at La Union, Salvador, and will remain one month, at least, on the Central American coast.

A severe but just article appears in the Panama Star and Herald on the Vanderbilt line of steamers from New-York to Aspinwall. The fact is, these steamers are a perfect ocean nuisance. Everything is done on the meanest, cheapest and dirtiest principle, and it is quite time the Panama Railroad Company and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, who are the principal parties interested in the California route, and who have something at stake in it, should either compel VANDERBILT to run a safe and decent line, or else run one themselves. It is strange, also, that the Government and underwriters should so long consent to be cheated by this line. On the last trip of the North Star to Aspinwall, 300 kegs of butter were stowed in passengers' berths, but breaking away in a slight blow, and the people on board being in danger of their lives from the rolling kegs, they were thrown overboard, and the insurers were made to suffer the loss. On the same steamer the Government had 100 cases of ordnance stores, consisting of bomb-shells, fixed ammunition, &c., stowed under the passengers' berths! Nineteen cases of them were thrown overboard. Ought not the Custom-house officers of New-York take some note of these things?

F. W. RICE, Esq., United States Consul at Aspinwall, returned on the 3d in the Ocean Queen, from the United States and Europe, and will resume the duties of his office, I understand, to-morrow.

SOUTH AMERICA.

All Quiet in Peru and Chili—Preparations for Opening the Valparaiso and Santiago Railway.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Sunday, Sept. 6, 1863.

The British mail steamship Callao, from Valparaiso and intermediate ports, arrived at Panama last evening. She has dates from Valparaiso and Santiago de Chili to Aug. 17 and from Lima and Callao to Aug. 28. The Callao brings $435,715 70 in gold and silver for England, and for the same destination 352 ceroons bark, 44 bales vegetable wool, 1,394 bales wool, 108 bales cotton, 82 bales orchilla, 42 bags barilla and 58 packages merchandise; for New-York, 130 ceroons bark, 14 bales cotton and 36 bales goat skins.

Peru is perfectly quiet.

Gen. MOSQUERA, Provisional President of the Republic of the United States of Colombia, is on the Ecuadorian frontier for a conference with President MORENO, but I believe he has no prospect of inducing Ecuador to join in his consolidation scheme, as respects his own country, Ecuador and Venezuela.

There is nothing of note from Bolivia. The question of the relative rights of Bolivia and Brazil in the navigation of the Amazon is still discussed with much warmth in the Bolivian papers and councils.

In Chili the factious opposition of the Chambers to the President had ceased, and that body was turning its attention to projects for the public welfare. It I proposed to work under regulations of the Government the guano deposits of Chili, wich are supposed to be very rich. The question of the Mejillones guano rights is still under discussion between Chili and Bolivia—but in the meantime the Chilian forces occupy the territory.

It is proposed to establish a Custom-house in the City of Santiago, to meet the wants of the new trade about to be opened with Valparaiso by the railroad.

Chili proposes to increase her navy. The merchant marine of Chili now amounts to 259 vessels, with a total of 59,110 tons.

Great preparations are making for the formal opening of the Valparaiso and Santiago Railroad. Thousands of persons will pass over the road to the fête in Santiago, as well as fire and other companies. The question is discussed as to whether the Government, which owns, ought to manage the road. HARAY MAIGS, the builder of the road, offers to run it for a certain number of years. It is probable a contract will be given to the highest bidder.

New lines of steamers are to be placed on the Southern route from Valparaiso. The Company possesses a capital of $400,000, and will purchase the steamers.

CENTRAL AMERICA.

The Military Situation.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PANAMA, Sunday, Sept. 6, 1863.

The Panama Railroad Company's steamship Salvador, from Central American ports, reached this port on the 4th instant. She has dates from San Jose de Guatemala to Aug. 26, from La Union, Salvador, to Aug. 28th, from Realijo to the 30th, and from San Jose de Costa Rica to Sept. 3.

The operations between the three belligerents, Guatemala under President CARRERA, Salvador under President BARRIOS, and Nicaragua under President MARTINEZ, are at a stand-still—the Guatemalians seeming to be afraid to attack BARRIOS, who still occupies the City of San Salvador. With the exception of that interior town, BARRIOS occupies only the port of La Libertad. The Nicaraguans occupy the City of San Miguel and La Union, its port, while CARRERA occupies all the part facing his own frontier, and his advance-guard is within two leagues of San Salvador. The Presidents MARTINEZ and CARRERA have about 8,000 men in Salvador, while to oppose them, BARRIOS has about 5,000 men. The situation of the latter is said to be improving, while the troops of CARRERA are deserting in large numbers. The opinion, however, seems to be generally entertained that BARRIOS cannot successfully defend himself against his combined enemies.

There are no other items of importance from any of the States, save that Mr. LUCE, agent for the French canal scheme in Nicaragua, writes that he is getting on swimmingly, which is more than vessels in this canal will ever do.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL NEWS.

The steamship Hansa, from Southampton on Sept. 2, arrived at this port last evening. The main points of her news have been received by the City of Manchester, and telegraphed from Cape Race.

The steamship Arabia passed Cape Race on Sunday evening, with advices from Europe three days later. A summary of her news will be found below.

The British Association gathering at Newcastle has been thoroughly successful.

The Daily News says:

"Owing to the large increase in the yield the harvest is estimated to be worth £29,000,000 to £30,000,000 more than that of last year, and there will consequently be no necessity for the importation of large supplies of breadstuffs from abroad."

The Queen will leave Rosenau on her return to England on Sept. 7, and will almost immediately proceed to Scotland.

The Prince and Princess of Wales were at the Braemar gathering, which took place on Thursday last at the seat of the Earl of Fife Mar Lodge.

The Bohemian arrived out Sept. 2, and the Hecla, at Queenstown, Aug 2.

The prize fight between MACE and GOSS, for £1,000, came off on Sept. 1, and resulted in the defeat of Goss.

A telegram from Vienna, of Aug. 31, says:

"Commercial houses in this city have received telegrams stating that a conflagration had taken place at Monastir, in Turkey, destroying the Bazar and 3,000 houses."

GREAT BRITAIN.

THE CONFEDERATE CRUISER "FLORIDA."

The Times says:

"Her Majesty's paddle-wheel sloop Geyser, (6) arrived in Plymouth Sound on Friday night. On the 21st she anchored in the port of Wexford, and there waited unsuccessfully for intelligence of the position of the Florida, which has been burning merchant vessels off the west coast of Ireland. The admiralty tank, in tow of a steam-tug, has been taken to the Geyser to supply her with water, and it is supposed that when replenished the sloop will resume her duty off Ireland."

The Army and Navy Gazette says:

"The Commander-in-Chief in the Pacific has received directions to detach from the squadron under his command a certain portion of the naval force stationed in the Pacific, in order to increase Admiral KOPER's strength on the coast of Japan.

STEAMERS FOR THE BLOCKADE.

The Scotsman says:

"Two more river steamers have left the Clyde this week for the purpose of running the blockade. The Rotherey Castle, of 84 tons, which was one of the fastest river steamers built on the Clyde, and was lately sold for a sum of £8,500, and a very fine new paddle steamer named the Fergus, of 100 tons, which is said to have great power and to sail very fast, have cleared for Nassau, and are manned by picked crews of thirty hands. Other three steamers left early in August, viz.: the Diamond, Gun and Scotia, and two large, powerful paddle steamers of 500 tons are fitting out at Greenock."

FRANCE.

POLITICAL MATTERS.

The Emperor presided at a Council of Ministers on the 29th of August.

La France says:

"Count GOLTZ had several interviews with the King of Prussia, at Baden, relative to the attitude of Prussia in the Polish and German questions and the policy which should be adopted toward France and Austria. Since his return to Paris, Count GOLTZ has had frequent audiences of the Emperor upon foreign affairs."

The same journal asserts that an aid-de-camp of the Archduke MAXIMILIAN of Austria will embark on September 2, charged with a mission to Mexico.

La France further alleges that President DAVIS had sent an extraordinary mission to the Provisional Government of Mexico, with proposals of recognition.

A Council of Ministers was held August 31.

The Empress took her departure for Biarritz on the 31st.

THE PACIFICATION OF POLAND.

The Patrie publishes letters from St. Petersburgh stating that a report was current there that a Russian ambassador was about to be sent to Paris, with the mission of preparing the French Government for the resolutions which the Russian Government is about to take in reference to Poland. He would also explain the scheme of a separate constitution for Poland, which would place that kingdom under exceptional conditions going beyond the claims of the Powers. The same letters announce that the presence of the Prince HOHENZOLLERN at Chalons, is considered to indicate an endeavor on the part of the King of Prussia, who exercises great influence over the decisions of the Czar, to establish more intimate relations between the French and Russian Cabinets. La France says: "If Russia, by granting concessions to Poland, gave satisfaction to the Poles and the guarantees demanded by the Powers, France would only have cause for congratulation." The same journal states that it has information from Moscow relative to the scheme of a Constitution, according to which the Russian Government would become constitutional. There would be a Senate of 300 members, and an Elective Chamber of 450.

Independently of the central representation the Provinces would receive special Constitutions. The Kingdom of Poland would have a Diet and a completely self-governing internal organization. Poland would, besides, send deputies to the Chamber of Representatives at St. Petersburgh. Diets would also be granted to Finland, and the other Provinces of the Empire. The Court party is opposed to the project, but it is probable that the Emperor, who is animated by liberal intentions, will not allow himself to be influenced by this opposition.

THE FRENCH MARKET.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says:

Trade continues to improve.

There was very little business transacted last week in the Paris grain market. Prices of flour vary from 53f. to 56f. the sack of flour.

A considerable quantity of American wheat arrived at Havre last week, and importers were forced to make reduction.

The Paris Bourse was firm on Monday and Rentes closed at 68f. 15c., or 40c. higher than on Saturday.

POLAND.

A telegram from Warsaw, of Aug. 29, says:

"The National Government has issued a decree forbidding the exercise of the censorship in Warsaw. The chief censor has consequently already tendered his resignation."

A dispatch from Leinberg, of Aug. 31, says:

"The main body of the insurgents gained a considerable victory over the Russians at Janow on the 30th. Seven insurgent corps are stated to have been engaged in this affair."

THE AUSTRIAN NOTE TO RUSSIA.

A telegram from Vienna, of Aug. 29, says:

"The note of Austria to Russia on the Polish question has been published to-day.

Austria therein expresses great regret that Russia had not given a more satisfactory reply to the notes of the Great Powers. The note then proceeds to state that the interest of Europe demands an early fulfillment of the work of conciliation in Poland. Foreign influences, it says, are not the only cause of the insurrection. Poland would be tranquil if Russia had fulfilled the political and religious engagements which she had contracted. The proposed conference of the eight Powers ought certainly to be acceptable to Russia.

In conclusion, Prince GORTSCHAKOFF is requested to give his most serious attention to the present state of things, for the consequences of which Austria declares Russia alone will be responsible."

JAPAN.

A telegram from Japan, of July 4, says:

"There is reported to be a growing affinity between the Tycoon's Government and foreigners. The Tycoon has chartered British ships to convey troops.

THE REBEL RAMS AND PIRATES.

EARL RUSSELL'S REPLY TO THE EMANCIPATION SOCIETY.

The following is Earl RUSSELL'S reply to the memorial of the Emancipation Society, relative to the steam rams in the Mersey:

FOREIGN OFFICE, Aug. 13.

GENTLEMEN: I have received your letter calling attention to a subject of very grave and pressing importance, namely: the fitting out or equipping two powerful iron-plated steam rams, which I am informed are intended to commit hostilities against the Government and people of the United States.

My attention has long been directed to these subjects. Both the Treasury and Home Departments have, at my request, made most anxious inquiries upon the subject of these steam rams.

You are aware that by the Foreign Enlistment Act a ship is liable to be detained, and the owners are subject to a penalty, when the ship is armed or equipped for purposes of war, and the owners intend to use her against some State or community in friendship with Her Majesty.

It is necessary to prove both the equipment and the intention. It is necessary for conviction in a public Court, in justice, to have the evidence of a creditable witness.

I was in hopes when I began to read your memorial that you would propose to furnish me with evidence to prove that the steam rams in question were intended to carry on hostilities against the Government and people of the United States; but you have made no proposal of the sort, and only tell me that you are informed that so and so, and it is believed that so and so.

You must be aware, however, that according to British law, prosecutions cannot be set on foot upon the ground of violation of the Foreign Enlistment act without the affidavits of credible witnesses, as in other cases of misdemeanor and crime. Such, likewise, is the law in use. Yours, etc., RUSSELL.

The Liverpool Post says: "It now appears that the steam rams launched from LAIRD's yards were built for the Confederate Government. Neither the French Government nor the French people were concerned in the business, but a French banker was. The rams were to be paid for out of the Confederate loan. M. LANGIER was one of the contractors for that loan, and was also guaranteed for the payment of the contract with LAIRD. He has a mortgage on both the vessels, and therefore they may ultimately become his property; but then the law would have to deal with this new feature in the transaction, and M. LANGIER might sell them to the British Government at cost price, and they are well worth the money, not for sea, but for coast and harbor service. For privateers they are totally unfit."

The Paris Pays states that the two ships are not constructed for the French Government, but have been ordered by the Government of Egypt, as their names indicate.

SYMPTOMS OF PENITENCE FROM THE TIMES.

The Times, in a leading article on the construction and sale of war vessels for belligerents, says:

"We have only to ask ourselves what our feelings would have been, if while we were blockading the Russian ports during the Crimean war, some neutral State had furnished the Russians with cruisers enough to close the sea against our commerce. Of course we should never have allowed them such a range as the Alabama has enjoyed, but some day or other even we, with our enormous navy, may find our hands too full. It is not our interest to allow such a precedent to be established for the first time, if it does not exist already, nor to connive at its extension, if it has any existence. Of all the doubts which the question contains, we ought to give ourselves the benefit, and our interests, as it happens, coincide on this occasion with the desires of the Federal States. Still the Americans, whether of the North or of the South, must be perfectly aware that we can make no concession to menace, and that the laws of England, whatever they may be, are not to be changed at the dictation of a foreign State. We do not think it morally right that ships like the Alabama should leave our ports for such service as that on which they are engaged. We do not wish to see any more of them sail on the like errand, though the Federals have themselves mainly to thank for the mischief which these cruisers have been permitted to work. If the steam rams now building in the Mersey are really destined for the Confederate Government, we sincerely hope the law may be strong enough to stop them."

THE FLORIDA.

The Paris Moniteur says that the Florida, sailing under the Confederate flag, entered Brest to repair damages. Her reception was according to the ordinary principles of international law. At the opening of the war the French Government, in accord with other Powers, recognized the Confederate States as belligerents, and declared its intention of observing a strict neutrality between the two parties. In like cases it is the right as well as the duty of neutrals to permit vessels of belligerents to procure means, not for fighting purposes, but for navigation. Therefore it has been decided that the Florida could be admitted to procure all that was indispensable to maintain her in a good navigable state, without her being able to make purchases tending to recruit her war arrangements.

The London Times publishes some particulars of the Florida's career as related by Capt. MAFFIT. He claims to have treated all prisoners of war with the greatest respect. He says that the Anglo-Saxon was captured sixty miles from Cork. When she was captured her pilot was referred to the Confederate Government for settlement of any just claim he might have. Capt. MAFFIT said as to his quitting Brest he expected that there would soon be seven or eight Federals outside the only narrow outlet; but as he had run eight blockades already, it would go hard, but he would run the ninth.

THE MEXICAN QUESTION.

An important pamphlet, ascribed to an official organ, had been published, entitled "France, Mexico, and the Confederates." It sets forth the interest which France has in recognising the Confederate States, and the impossibility of the reëstablishment of the American Union; maintaining that an American war would be useful to France, if separation between the North and South be definitively pronounced; for the Confederate States would be the allies of France, and would guarantee her from attack from the North, would fulfill her hopes, and her manufacturers would obtain cotton, which is absolutely necessary for them.

The Paris correspondent of the Morning Herald has good reason to believe that this pamphlet expresses not only the opinion but the intention of the Imperial Government. As to the period when this intention shall be carried into effect, it depends exclusively on the Emperor, but it assuredly will not be delayed.

The correspondent of the Daily News writes that he considers the pamphlet in such perfect harmony with the known leanings of the Emperor, that he thinks it worth while to notice it; and that if SLIDELL, who has lately had repeated interviews with DROUYN DE LHUYS, following upon conferences with the Emperor himself, has received carte blanche to publish the pamphlet in Paris, he could not have written more favorably for the Southern cause, or apologized more ingeniously for the institution of Slavery, than he does in this pamphlet.

PRUSSIA.

The decree issued dissolving the Chamber appears to be fully confirmed.

FROM THE SOUTHWEST.

Rioting in Mobile—Soldiers' Wives Demand "Bread or Peace"—Activity of Rebel Cavalry.

MEMPHIS, Friday, Sept. 11.

Refugees lately arrived within our lines bring exciting reports of the terrible condition of affairs in the South.

One man, who left Mobile on the 5th, states that there was a terrible riot of soldiers' wives in Mobile on the 4th. About 600 women and children collected on Spring Hill, armed with clubs and hatchets, and marched through the principal streets, carrying banners inscribed "Bread or Blood," "Bread or Peace," and other similar inscriptions.

Being soldiers' wives, their proceedings were winked at by the soldiers, who made but a feeble resistance. Stores were broken open. One merchant, a Jew, struck one of the women, and some policemen present arrested the Jew and beat him severely. Many citizens left the town—among them our informant, who says the riot was increasing when he left.

The rebel cavalry in our front are very active, probably making some movement of their main army. Skirmishes are frequent, but amount to little. Our forces are generally successful in these little affairs.

Disgraceful Fight between Fire Companies.

There was an alarm of fire Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, and after it Engine Companies Number Nine and Number Twenty-one came in riotous collision on Second-avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets. They had a savage fight, in which knives, stones &c. were freely used. The fight continued so far as Fourteenth-street, Number Nine being driven. A number of men were severely hurt, and one stabbed, it is thought, fatally. This fight was originated by the runners of the different Companies, the members subsequently participating. The avenue was full of men, women and children, who had to flee for their lives.

THE STATE ELECTION IN MAINE.

Indicated Success of the Union Ticket—Large Republican Gains.

PORTLAND, Monday, Sept. 14—6 P. M.

Bath gives Samuel Cony, Union, for Governor, 1,021; Bradbury, Democrat, 320.

Lewiston gives Cony 550 majority—a gain of 175 to 200 votes.

Auburn gives a Republican gain of 75 votes.

Intelligence from east of the Kennebec shows strong Republican gains.

The vote of Portland is not all in, but the majority will probably be over 600 Republican. Returns from six Wards give CONY 2,201, BRADBURY 1,650, being a net Republican gain of 207, which will probably be still more increased by Ward Seven.

The following is the vote of some of the chief towns, cast at the State election to-day.

Augusta gives CONY (Union) for Governor, 396 majority—a net gain of 128 for the Unionists.

Scarboro gives CONY 201 majority—a net gain of 43.

Bangor gives CONY 850 majority—a net gain of 335.

Balwer gives Cony 300 majority—a net gain of 168.

Biddeford gives Cony 678; Bradbury (Dem) 730.

Forty-one towns give Cony 15,537, and Bradbury, 10,716—a gain over last year.

POWERS' PERIODICAL DROPS are designed for both married and single ladies, and are the very best thing known for the purpose, as they will bring on the monthly sickness in every case of suppression from any cause, and after all other remedies of the kind have been tried in vain. Expressly for obstinate cases. Warranted as represented in every respect, or the price will be refunded. Es-Beware of imitations! Purchase directly of Dr. POWERS, 50 Lispenard-st., New-York.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP RESTORES the vigor of youth in four days. Restores manhood to the most shattered system. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place. Beware of bogus Dr. Hunters. The City is full of knaves, up to every trick to rob him of his great reputation as a skillful and reliable physician. No other office but No. 3 Division-st. Established in 1831. Eight separate rooms and a private entrance.

DR. JOHNSON, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY be consulted with confidence on private diseases. Thirty years in one specialty enables him to guarantee speedy and permanent cures. N. B.—Those who may have been misled by quack advertisements, nostrums, &c., can call on Dr. J., with the certainty of receiving honorable treatment.

ADVICE TO LADIES.—IN ALL CASES where infallible medicines are desired, or mode of treatment that never fails, call upon Dr. A. M. MAURICEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, author of "The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion," who treats female complaints exclusively. Office 129 Liberty-st.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.—DISEASES OF females scientifically treated by Dr. THIERS, No. 1,217 Broadway, (near 29th-st.,) New-York. Send a red stamp for ladies' circular and escape quackery. Board provided.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 300 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

IV. In case any such indigent drafted person, whose liability to serve has been determined by the action of the Board of Enrollment, has a family depending upon him for support, who are in such condition as to render it, in the opinion of the Substitute and Relief Committee, a case of peculiar hardship for him to leave them, and he shall be unable to procure a substitute within the time required, he may report the fact to said Committee, and on their being satisfied in regard to it, and particularly, that he has used his best endeavors to obtain a substitute, they will furnish him a certificate to be presented to the Comptroller, who will thereupon pay to the proper officer of the Government the sum necessary to obtain his exemption from the draft.

IMPORTANT DIPLOMATIC CIRCULAR.

A Letter from Secretary Seward to the Foreign Consuls Detailing the Progress of the National Arms from April, 1862, to August, 1863.

CIRCULAR NO. 39.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12, 1863.

SIR: Whenever the United States have complained of the premature decrees of Great Britain and France, which accorded the character of a belligerent to the insurgents, the statesmen of those countries have answered, that from the first they agreed in opinion that the efforts of the Government to maintain the Union, and preserve the integrity of the Republic, could not be successful. With a view to correct this prejudgment of so vital a question, I addressed a circular letter to the representatives of the United States in foreign countries on the 14th day of April, 1862, in which I reviewed the operations of the war on sea and land, and presented the results which had attended it down to that period. The prejudice, which I then attempted to remove, still remains, and it constitutes the basis of all that is designedly or undesignedly injurious to this country in the policy of foreign nations. The insurgents have been enabled to protract their resistance by means of sympathy and aid they have received from abroad, and the expectation of further and more effective foreign assistance is now their chief resource. A new effort, therefore, to correct that prejudice is demanded equally by a prudent concern for our foreign relations, and by the paramount interests of peace and humanity at home.

In the battles of August, 1862, the Union forces suffered some severe and appaling reverses. But they resulted in the reunion of the army which had been called in from the Peninsula, below Richmond, with the army which had its position between that strongly fortified seat of the insurrection and this capital. The wisdom of this reunion was soon to be vindicated. The insurgent army, flushed with its recent successes, and expecting that a sympathetic interest of Slavery would produce an uprising of the people of Maryland in its favor, for the first time crossed the Potomac River. Harper's Ferry, with many prisoners, fell into its hands, rather through accidents in preparing its defence than because it was indefensible. Nevertheless, the expectation of recruits signally failed. Gen. McCLELLAN, commanding the now consolidated forces of the Army of the Potomac, was reënforced by fresh levies from Pennsylvania, and by detachments called in from neighboring forts. He drove the insurgents from their positions at South Mountain and Crampton's Gap. About the middle of September the two opposing armies confronted each other at Sharpsburgh, and a pitched battle was fought on the banks of the Antietam and Potomac. It was well sustained on both sides. Men of one race and training directed the armies whose rank and file were substantially of one blood, and even nearly equal in numbers. The arrogant assumption of superior valor and heroism which the insurgents had brought into the contest, and had cherished throughout its early stages, perished on that sanguinary field. The insurgent army, shattered in the conflict, abandoned the invasion of Maryland and sought refuge and opportunity to recover its wasted strength in Virginia, behind its accustomed barrier, the Potomac.

While LEE was thus attempting Maryland, the equally bold and alarming enterprise of carrying the war through Kentucky into Ohio was assigned to BRAGG, who was in command of the insurgent army on the southern border of Tennessee. He, with great rapidity, moved from Chattanooga, turning the left flank of Gen. BUELL, and, appealing for reënforcements to the slavery-inspired sentiments which existed in Kentucky and Tennessee, directed his forces against Louisville and Cincinnati. An uprising of the farmers of Ohio confronted and turned away the devastation from the latter city. Gen. BUELL followed the main column of invasion, outmarched it on the way to Louisville, and obliged it to take a direction eastward. The two insurgent columns being united at Perryville, were attacked by Gen. BUELL. The battle, like all of our contests, was obstinate and bloody. BRAGG, after severe losses, retreated through a comparatively barren region, and BUELL was obliged to abandon the pursuit by the complete exhaustion of all sources of supply. The insurgent commander crossed the Cumberland mountains, and then, marching westward, took up a position at Murfreesboro, fortified there, and proceeded to recruit his wasted forces.

VAN DORN and PRICE were at the same period in command of very considerable forces in Mississippi and Alabama, and to them was assigned the third part in the grand invasion of the loyal States which the cabal at Richmond had decreed. This was an attempt, as they called it, to deliver, but in fact to subjugate Western Tennessee and Kentucky. Gen. ROSECRANS received the assault of those portions of the insurgent forces at Corinth, defeated them with great slaughter, and drove them backward, so that they neither reached nor approached the region which they were appointed to invade. Gen. ROSECRANS, called to succeed Gen. BUELL in command of the Army of the Cumberland, then entered Nashville, which the insurgents had before invested in carrying out their general scheme of invasion. He raised the siege and prepared for offensive action. In the last days of the year he issued from Nashville and delivered a sanguinary battle at Stone River, which gave him possession of Murfreesboro; BRAGG retreated to Shelbyville and Tullahoma, and there again rested and intrenched. A long period of needed rest was now employed by the respective parties in increasing the strength and efficiency of their armies; but this repose was broken by frequent skirmishes and by cavalry expeditions, which penetrated behind the regular sometimes hundreds of miles, and effected breaches of military connection and the destruction of military stores upon an extensive scale, while they kept up the spirit of the troops, and hardened them for more general and severe conflicts.

Vicksburgh then remained in the hands of the Insurgents, the principal key to the navigation of the Mississippi River—a navigation which was confessed on all sides to be absolutely essential to the United States, and, when reopened by them, fatal to the insurrection. The duty of wresting that key from the insurgents had been devolved on the navy, with the aid of a considerable land force then encamped on the west bank of the Mississippi River. But new and unforeseen difficulties continually baffled the enterprise, and seemed to render it impossible. Gen. GRANT, who was at the head of the Department and of the Army of the Tennessee, at length assumed the active command of the troops investing the stronghold, and these were adequately reinforced. The naval squadron on the Mississippi, under command of Rear-Admiral PORTER, was also steadily increased until more than 100 armed vessels were employed upon the river, including many iron-clad gunboats of great power. Part of the Gulf Squadron, under Admiral FARRAGUT, gallantly running the batteries of Port Hudson under a fierce fight, coöperated with the river fleets. Laborious and persevering attempts were made to open an artificial channel for the river opposite Vicksburgh, as had been done with such signal success at Island No. 10. But the various canals, projected and executed, failed, and only a few small steamers of no considerable power were thus enabled to pass the city. Combined land and naval expeditions were also sent forth, which with infinite pains and endurance, attempted to turn the enemy's works by navigating the various bayous and sluggish rivers, whose intricate net work forms so singular a feature of the military topography of the banks of the Mississippi. All these attempts having failed from physical obstacles found to be insurmountable, Gen. GRANT and Admiral PORTER at last put afloat armed steamers and steam-transports, which ran through the fires of the long line of shore batteries which the insurgents had erected at Vicksburgh, and its chief supports, Warrenton and Grand Gulf. At the same time the land forces moved down the right bank of the river to a point below Grand Gulf, where they crossed in the steamers which had effected so dangerous a passage. The batteries of Grand Gulf for several hours resisted a bombardment by the gunboats at short range, but they fell into the hands of the Admiral as soon as Gen. GRANT's forces appeared behind them. Gen. GRANT, through a series of brilliant manœuvres—with marches interrupted by desperate battles by day, succeeded in dividing and separating the insurgent forces. He then attacked the chief auxiliary column under JOHNSTON, and drove it out of Jackson, the capital of Mississippi. Having destroyed the railroad bridges and military stores there, Gen. GRANT turned at once to the West. Numerous combats ensued, in all of which the loyal arms were successful. LORING, with a considerable insurgent force, was driven off toward the southeast, while PEMBERTON, after a loss of sixty pieces of artillery and many prisoners, regained his shelter within the fortified lines of Vicksburgh, with an army now reduced to between thirty thousand and forty thousand men. During these movements the heavy batteries of the insurgents which were established near the mouth of the Yazoo River, and which constituted an important part of the defensive system of Vicksburgh, were taken and razed by Rear-Admiral PORTER, who thereupon sent a detachment of his fleet up that important tributary of the Mississippi, and effectually destroyed the numerous vessels and stores which were found within and upon its banks. Gen. GRANT, during these brilliant operations, had necessarily operated by a movable column. He now reëstablished his communications with the river fleets above as well as below Vicksburgh, invested the town, and ignorant of the numbers inclosed within its defences, attempted an assault. Though bravely and vigorously made, it was nevertheless unsuccessful. He thereupon sat down before the fortifications, to reduce them by the less bloody, but sure methods of siege. PEMBERTON made a gallant defence, hoping for relief from JOHNSTON. Strenuous efforts were made by the chiefs at Richmond to enable JOHNSTON to render that assistance. They detached and sent to him troops from BRAGG's army on the frontier of Alabama, and from BEAUREGARD's command in South Carolina, and in doing this they endangered both those armies. All the capable free men of Mississippi were called to the rescue of the capital of their State, and to save the stronghold of the treasonable Confederacy which was besieged within their limits. Moreover, the besieged post was in the very center of the slave population of the Confederacy, and the President's proclamation of freedom would be sounded in their hearing if the stronghold should fall. But the effort required was too great for the demoralized and exhausted condition of the insurgents. JOHNSTON did not arrive to raise the siege, nor did success attend any of the attempts from within to break the skillfully drawn lines of Gen. GRANT. On the Fourth of July Gen. PEMBERTON laid down his arms and surrendered the post, with thirty thousand men, two hundred pieces of artillery, seventy thousand small arms, and ammunition sufficient for a six years' defence. This capture was as remarkable as the famous one made by Napoleon at Ulm.

On the same day an insurgent attack upon Gen. PRENTISS, at Helena, situated on the west bank of the Mississippi, in the State of Arkansas, was repulsed with the loss of many prisoners on the part of the assailants. As if the anniversary so identified with the nation's hopes was appointed to be peculiarly eventful, LEE, who had again entered Maryland, and passing through that State had approached the Susquehanna, threatening Harrisburgh, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Baltimore, fell back, after pitched battles continued for three days at Gettysburgh, and resumed his retreat, with an army even worse shattered than before, to his accustomed position on the Rappahannock.

On the 8th of July, the insurgent garrison at Port Hudson, 6,000 strong, after enduring a long siege with the utmost courage, surrendered unconditionally to Gen. BANKS; and thus the United States recovered from the insurgents the last of the numerous posts by which, for more than two years, they had effectually destroyed the navigation of the Mississippi. This great river, which in time of peace contributes relatively as much toward a supply of the increased wants of mankind as the Nile did to those wants in the time of the Roman Empire, is now again opened to the inland commerce of the country. Steamers descend the river and its tributaries from the navigable floods to the Gulf of Mexico. It is not to be doubted that the insurgent losses in these operations upon the Mississippi amount to 40,000 men and 300 pieces of artillery, a large portion of which were of heavy calibre. JOHNSTON's army, which, at the time of the surrender, was advancing to threaten the besiegers, at once fell back to Jackson, and it was again driven from that capital by a detachment which Gen. GRANT had committed to the command of Gen. SHERMAN. In retiring, JOHNSTON fired many buildings filled with munitions of war, and abandoned a large quantity of railroad locomotives and cars, which had been defaced at that place by reason of the railroads north, south, east and west of Jackson having been previously cut by the Government forces.

Gen. SHERMAN now desisted from the pursuit of JOHNSTON, and returned to Vicksburgh, where a portion of the army is enjoying repose, not more necessary than well earned, while others are engaged in expelling from the vicinity of the Mississippi roving bands of the insurgents who infest its banks, and fire from thence upon passing steamers. It is reported that JOHNSTON, with the troops at his command, now said to be twenty-five thousand, has fallen back to Meridian, on the eastern border of Mississippi, 120 miles east of Vicksburgh, so that the State, whose misguided people were among the earliest and most intemperate abettors of the insurrection, is virtually abandoned by its military agents.

In Louisiana, Gen. BANKS succeeded Gen. BUTLER. After spending some months in organizing the Department, and disciplining the new levies which constituted its force, Gen. BANKS made a rapid and successful series of marches and contests, in which he drove the insurgent troops out of the Attakapas and Teche regions, well known as the richest portions of that very productive State, captured Alexandria and Donaldsonville, the seats of its fugitive seditious executive and legislative authorities, crossed the Mississippi at Bayou Sara, and there receiving an additional column which was ascending from Baton Rouge, invested Port Hudson, which, excluding Vicksburgh, was the only remaining stronghold of the insurrection on the great river.

It will be remembered that on the 22d day of September, 1862, the President issued a Proclamation requiring the insurgents to lay down their arms and return to their allegiance, under the penalty that in all the districts where the insurrection should be still maintained with the support of the people he would, on the 1st of January then next, proclaim as a military measure the freedom of the slaves. The warning was generally rejected and defied, but the Proclamation which it heralded was duly issued. As the National armies advanced into the insurrectionary territories, slaves in considerable numbers accepted their freedom, and came under the protection of the National flag. Amidst the great prejudice and many embarrassments which attended a measure so new and so divergent from the political habits of the country, freedmen with commendable alacrity enlisted in the Federal army. There was in some quarters a painful inquiry about their moral capacity for service. That uncertainty was brought to a sudden end in the siege of Port Hudson. The newly raised negro regiments exhibited all necessary valor and devotion in the military assaults which were made, with desperate courage, and not without fearful loss by Gen. BANKS. This protracted operation engaged nearly all of Gen. BANKS' available forces. While it was going on insurgent troops, which were called up from Texas, reoccupied much of the southwestern portion of Louisiana which he had before reclaimed. The surrender of Port Hudson, however, set his army at liberty, and he has already made considerable progress in restoring the national authority thus temporarily displaced.

The complete occupation of the Mississippi by the National forces has effectually divided the insurrectionary region into two parts, and among the important features of this division, one which is of the highest practical significance is, that the field of military operations of the insurrection is chiefly on the eastern side of the river, while its supplies have been mainly drawn from the prairies of Arkansas and Texas, which stretch away from the western shore. These prairies can no longer supply the insurgents with cattle for sustenance and use in the field, and, on the other hand, arms, ordnance and ammunition can no longer be sent from the eastern manufactories and depots to forces employed or in garrison in the West. The value of the acquisition of the Mississippi in this respect was illustrated only a few days since in the capture by Gen. GRANT, near Natchez, of 5,000 beeves and 2,000 mules, which had crossed to the eastern bank, and at the same time many hundred thousands of cartridges and other stores which had just been landed at the western end of the same ferry.

A vigorous blockade has been maintained at Charleston, and although fast steamers, of light draught and painted with obscure colors, occasionally succeed in slipping through the blockading squadron in the morning and evening twilight, many are destroyed and more are captured. An attack by the fleet, made on the 7th day of April last, upon the forts and batteries which defend the harbor, failed because the rope obstructions in the channel fouled the screws of the iron-clads and compelled them to retire after passing through the fire of the batteries. Those vessels bore the fire of the forts, although some defects of construction were revealed by the injuries they received. The crews passed through an unexampled cannonade with singular impunity. Not one life was lost on board of a monitor. The defects disclosed have been remedied, and an attack is now in progress, with good prospect of ultimate success, having for its object the reduction of the forts in the harbor by the combined sea and land forces. We occupy more than half of Morris Island with land forces, which, aided by batteries afloat and batteries ashore, are pushing siege works up to Fort Wagner, a strong earthwork which has been twice assaulted with great gallantry, but without success. On the 17th of June, the Atlanta, which was regarded by the insurgents as their most formidable iron-clad vessel, left Savannah, and came down the Wilmington River. The National iron-clads Weehawken, Capt. JOHN ROGERS, and Nahant, Commander JOHN DOWNS, were in readiness to meet her. At 4 o'clock 54 minutes the Atlanta fired a rifle-shot across the stern of the Weehawken, which struck near the Nahant. At 5:15 the Weehawken, at a range of 300 yards, opened upon the Atlanta, which had then grounded. The Weehawken fired five shots, four of which took effect on the Atlanta. She surrendered at 5:30.

Our lines have not changed in North Carolina. All attempts of the insurgents to recapture the towns from which they had been expelled have been repulsed. Much damage has been inflicted upon their communications, and valuable military stores have been destroyed by expeditions into the interior. North Carolina shows some symptoms of disaffection toward the insurgent league. Similar indications are exhibited in Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Texas.

The situation on the York and James Rivers has remained unchanged since the withdrawal of the army of Gen. McCLELLAN from the Peninsula a year ago. Attempts by the insurgents to retake Williamsburgh and Suffolk have been defeated, but the garrison at the latter place has been withdrawn for purely military reasons to a more defensible line.

I now return to the Army of the Potomac, which was left resting and refitting after putting an end to the first insurgent invasion of Maryland. Gen. McCLELLAN recrossed the Potomac and entered Virginia in November, and obliged the invading forces under LEE to fall backward to Gordonsville, south of the Rappahannock. When the Army of the Potomac reached Warrenton it was placed under command of Gen. BURNSIDE. He marched to Falmouth, hoping to cross the Rappahannock at Fredericksburgh, and to move at once upon Richmond. Delays, resulting from various causes, without fault of the General, permitted the insurgents to occupy the Heights of Fredericksburgh, and when, at length, in December, Gen. BURNSIDE crossed the Rappahannock, his assault upon LEE's well-fortified position failed. He skillfully recrossed the river without loss. Gen. HOOKER succeeded to the command, and it was not until the beginning of May that the condition of the river and roads permitted a renewal of offensive operations. The General crossed the Rappahannock and accepted a battle, which proved equally sanguinary to both parties, and unsuccessful to the Army of the Potomac. The heights of Fredericksburgh were captured by Gen. SEDGWICK's corps, but the whole army was compelled to return to the north bank of the river. After this battle, LEE, in the latter part of May and in June, withdrew his army from Gen. HOOKER's front, and ascending the south bank of the Rapidan, toward the sources of the Rappahannock, entered the Shenandoah Valley, and once more tempted the fortune of war by invading the loyal States. A severe cavalry engagement at Beverly Ford unmasked this movement. The Army of the Potomac broke up its camps and marched to the encounter. The militia of Maryland, Pennsylvania and New-York flew to arms, and occupied Baltimore, Harrisburgh, and the line of the Susquehanna. The two armies met at Gettysburgh, in Pennsylvania, and after a fierce conflict of three days' duration, and terrible slaughter on both sides, the insurgents recoiled from the position held by Gen. MEADE, who had been then only four days in command of the army of the Potomac. On the Fourth of July, the day of the surrender of Vicksburgh, LEE retreated, passing through Chambersburgh and Hagerstown to Williamsport, where the proper disposition to attack him was made by Gen. MEADE. Deceived concerning the state of the river, supposed to be unfordable, Gen. MEADE, hourly expecting reinforcements, delayed the attack a day too long, and the insurgents, partly by fording and partly by floating bridges, succeeded in withdrawing across the river by night, with their artillery and a great part of their baggage. Much of this baggage, as well as of the plunder which LEE had collected, was destroyed by cavalry, or thrown out of the wagons to make room for the wounded whom LEE carried off from the battle-field. He had buried most of his dead of the first day's conflict at Gettysburgh. The remainder, together with those who fell on the second and third days of the battle—in all, 4,500—were buried by the victorious army. Many thousand insurgents, wounded and captives, fell into the hands of Gen. MEADE. It is not doubted that this second unsuccessful invasion cost the insurgents 40,000 men. Our own loss was severe, for the strife was obstinate and deadly. Gen. MEADE crossed the Potomac. LEE retired again to Gordonsville, where he is now understood to be in front of our forces.

While the stirring events which have been related were occurring in the East and in the West, Gen. ROSECRANS advanced upon BRAGG, who, with little fighting, hastily abandoned his fortified positions of Tullahoma, in Southern Tennessee. Gen. ROSECRANS took, and yet holds them, while BRAGG, with severe loss in a hurried retreat, has fallen back to Chattanooga. It is understood that his army had been already much weakened by detachments sent to reinforce JOHNSTON, with a view to a raising of the siege of Vicksburgh.

I must not overlook the operations of cavalry. Gen. STONEMAN, in connection with the movement upon Chancellorsville, made a rapid and effective passage through the insurgent country, from the Rappahannock to the York River, which will be remembered among the striking achievements of the war. While our forces were operating against Vicksburgh and Port Hudson, Col. GRIERSON, with a force of 1,500 men, left Corinth, on the northern border of the State of Mississippi, and made an expedition, in which he broke military communications, destroyed stores, and effected captures through the length and breadth of the State, and finally, without serious loss, joined the army of Gen. BANKS, then engaged in the siege of Port Hudson.

JOHN MORGAN, hitherto the most successful of the insurgent partisans, recently passed around the lines of Gen. BURNSIDE, crossed the States of Tennessee and Kentucky; moving northward, and avoiding all large bodies of our troops, he reached the Ohio River at Brandenburgh, below Louisville, and seized two steamboats with which he crossed into Indiana. Thence proceeding rapidly eastward, subsisting on the country and impressing horses as his own gave out, he traversed a portion of Indiana and nearly the whole breadth of Ohio, destroying railroad stations and bridges and plundering the defenceless villages. The people rallied to arms under the calls of their Governors. Some of them occupied the most important points, while others barricaded the roads or hung upon the rear of the intruders. MORGAN found no disaffected citizens to recruit his wasted ranks, and when he reached the Ohio his force was prevented from crossing by the gunboats, and driven backward with great slaughter. His force was between 2,500 and 4,000 horse, with several pieces of artillery. Only some 300 succeeded in recrossing the Ohio and escaping into the wilds of Western Virginia. Many perished in battles and skirmishes, and the remainder, including MORGAN himself, his principal officers, and all his artillery, were finally captured by the National forces. An attempt has just been made by the insurgents to invade Eastern Kentucky, which probably was begun with a view to make a diversion in favor of MORGAN's escape, but the forces, after penetrating as far as Lexington, have been routed by detachments from Gen. BURNSIDE's army, and pursued, with the capture of many prisoners and of all their artillery.

This review of the campaign shows that no great progress has been made by our arms in the East. The opposing forces there have been too equally matched to allow great advantages to accrue to either party, while the necessity of covering the National capital in all contingencies has constantly restrained our Generals and forbidden such bold and dangerous movements as usually conduct to brilliant military success. In the West, however, the results have been more gratifying. Fifty thousand square miles have been reclaimed from the possession of the insurgents. On referring to the annexed map it will be seen that since the breaking out of the insurrection, the Government has extended its former sway over and through a region of 200,000 square miles, an area as large as Austria or France, or the Peninsula of Spain and Portugal. The insurgents lost in the various field and siege operations of the month of July which I have described, one-third of their whole forces.

JEFFERSON DAVIS, the leader of the sedition, has since proclaimed a levy of all the able-bodied men within his military lines. This, if carried into effect, will exhaust the whole material of which soldiers can be made. The insurgents estimate the total number of conscripts thus to be gained at from 70,000 to 95,000. Our armies now confront the insurgents at all points with superior numbers. A draft for 300,000 more is in progress, to replace those whose terms of service have expired, and to fill up the wasted ranks of our veteran regiments, and the people, just so fast as the evidence of the necessity for that measure is received and digested, submit with cheerfulness to the ascertained demands. Our armies everywhere are well equipped, abundantly fed, and supplied with all the means of transportation. The soldiers of two years' service bear themselves as veterans, and show greater steadiness in every conflict. The men, accustomed to the camp, and hardened by exercise and experience, make marches which would have been impossible in the beginning of the contest. The navies is becoming familiar with arms, and easily takes on the habits of war. Large voluntary enlistments continually augment our military force. All supplies are abundantly and cheaply purchased within our lines. The country shows no signs of exhaustion of money, material, or men. A requisition for 6,200 remount horses was filled and the animals dispatched from Washington all in four days. Our loan is purchased at par by our own citizens, at the average rate of $1,200,000 daily. Gold sells, in our market, at 123 to 128, while in the insurrectionary region it commands 1,200 per cent. premium.

Every insurgent port is either blockaded, besieged, or occupied by the National forces. The field of the projected Confederacy is divided by the Mississippi. All the fortifications on its banks are in our hands, and its flood is patrolled by the national fleet.

Missouri, Kentucky, Delaware, Maryland—all Slave States—support the Federal Government. Missouri has already in Convention ordained the gradual abolition of Slavery, to take effect at the end of seven years. Four-fifths of Tennessee, two-thirds of Virginia, the coasts and sounds of North Carolina, half of Mississippi and half of Louisiana, with all their large cities, part of Alabama, and the whole seacoast of Georgia and South Carolina, and no inconsiderable part of the coast of Florida, are held by the United States. The insurgents, with the slaves whom they yet hold in defiance of the President's Proclamation are now crowded into the central and southern portions of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Alabama, while the pioneer slaveholding insurgents beyond the Mississippi are cut off from the main force. On the other hand, it is less than six months since the laws or customs of the United States would allow a man of African descent to bear arms in defence of his country, there are now in the field 22,000 regularly enlisted, armed, and equipped soldiers of that class, while 50 regiments of 2,000 each are in progress of organization and 62,800 persons of the same class are employed as teamsters, laborers, and camp-followers. These facts show that, as the insurrection continues, the unfortunate servile population, which was at the beginning an element of its strength, is being transferred to the support of the Union.

You will use the facts presented in this paper in such a way as may be most effective to convince those who seek a renewal of commercial prosperity through the restoration of peace in America, that the quickest and shortest way to gain that desirable end is to withdraw support and favor from the insurgents, and to leave the adjustment of our domestic controversies exclusively with the people of the United States.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

A NAVAL OFFICER SHOT BY A SENTINEL.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sunday, Sept. 13.

Dr. DRENAN, of the gunboat Commodore Jones, was shot last night in Norfolk by a sentinel. He started in a boat from Kimberley's Wharf to cross over to the Naval Hospital, when he was hailed by the sentinel. Not hearing him, he kept on his way, until he was shot and very dangerously wounded. Several persons have recently been shot at and some two or three badly wounded by these sentinels.

THE INJUNCTION.—In the Board of Councilmen, yesterday, a motion to contest the injunction on action upon the $3,000,000 exemption ordinance was made, but judiciously laid over. There can be no practical advantage gained by contesting the matter. Even if the injunction should be removed, nothing would ever come of the ordinance. The purpose it was intended for is being fully answered, and ere long will be completed. The Board of Aldermen adopted a similar resolution.

This is to certify that about 18 months ago, I commenced using STERLING'S AMBROSIA. My hair was short, thin, and rapidly falling off. I had tried many Hair Tonics, Invigorators, &c., without receiving any benefit. Soon after using the Ambrosia, my hair ceased falling out, and commenced growing so rapidly as to astonish me. Now my hair is thick, soft and glossy, and is five feet and four inches in length—when let down reaching to the floor. This wonderful result I attribute solely to the use of STERLING'S AMBROSIA, as since I have commenced using it I have applied nothing else to my hair.
